Taylor Tells Of Fighting Movie Reds

By DAVID SENTNER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—In addition to the anti-Communist testimony of Robert Taylor, one of the screen's handsomest stars, the bizarre story of how the film studio secretaries, press agents and story analysts have been corraled into a Communist-dominated painters union will be unfolded today before a congressional committee.

Taylor flew his own plane into Chicago before taking a commercial sky ship to Washington for his appearance before the House committee on un-American activities probing Red influence in Hollywood.

Taylor will tell of his efforts to clean out Communist control of the Screen Actors Guild. He will also relate how New Deal officialdom insisted he star in a film he considered pro-Soviet, thereby delaying his reporting for duty in the Navy during the war.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Chairman Thomas (R.) of New Jersey said today the House committee on un-American activities has a "very complete record on at least 79" Hollywood personalities who have engaged in subversive activities. Thomas made this statement as the committee started the third day of hearings in its investigation of Communism in the motion picture industry.

James McGuiness, top official in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and famous screen writer and director, will be the first witness.

He will expose the Communist methods of "capturing" young actors and actresses in the motion picture industry.

McGuiness will also testify how the Screen Office Employes Guild, composed of the confidential secretaries to film producers and other studio office workers, was chartered by the painters union headed by Herbert Sorrell, film labor leader.

Adolph Menjou, motion picture star, testified yesterday that Sorrell was a member of the Communist party under the name of "Stewart."

"Why the studio secretaries and stenographers should qualify to carry a painters union card is incomprehensible other than the fact they might carry a lipstick," McGuiness told this correspondent.

The Screen Office Employes Guild, together with the Screen Analyst Guild and Screen Publicists Guild recently broke away from Sorrell's outfit.

RYSKIND TO FOLLOW

Morrie Ryskind, noted screen writer, scheduled to follow Taylor as a witness, will amplify the picture of how the Communist bloc works on the studio employe as well as the young actor and actress.

Ryskind will give examples of how the confidential secretaries to important studio executives are invited to gala parties given by well-known Leftist stars, where they are treated as social equals and soon are calling the stars by their first names.

Howard Rushmore, ace reporter of the New York Journal-American and an authority on the Communist subversive movement, will be another witness today.

His testimony will include identification of John Howard Lawson, Hollywood writer and reorganizer of the Red-dominated Screen Writers Guild, as having been assigned as Hollywood commissar by the culture commission in the Communist Party.

Rushmore will testify to attending a secret session of the culture commission, part of the Commu-

Defeat of Marshall Plan Now Revealed as Official Red Goal

By NATALIA RENE

MOSCOW, Oct. 22 (INS)—The Soviet made public today an announcement by Col. Gen. Zhdanov that Russia would apply all its strength to assure that the Marshall Plan for Europe does not succeed. The declaration was made by Zhdanov during the meeting in Poland of Communist party leaders from nine countries.

This meeting established the so-called Communist International "Information Bureau" which will operate out of Belgrade.

Zhdanov is a member of the all-powerful Soviet Politburo and an extremely close associate of Premier Stalin. He said Europe "has at present sufficient forces capable to stop this plan of enslavement" if sufficient will and decision were excerised.

Zhdanov said:

"Soviet foreign policy is based upon the fact that for a long period the capitalist and Soviet systems have been co-existent.

OPPOSED TO RENEWAL

"Therefore, collaboration between the USSR and other systems is possible provided the principle of mutuality and fulfilment of obligations is maintained.

"The Soviet Union is ready to collaborate loyally with all desiring such collaboration, but is simultaneously opposed to the principle of revenge against conquered peoples and wants a unified, peaceful and demilitarized Germany.

"The perspective of reconstruction of German imperialism as a real force capable of resisting democracy and Communism in Europe cannot entice England or France.

"This is the reason for one of the main inconsistencies within the England-United States-France bloc and a reason for failure of the Marshall plan.

"The U. S. A. heads the post-war imperialist camp and conducts a new policy based upon economic expansion and a strategic plan enforced by an ideological struggle."

ACCUSES U. S. STRATEGISTS

The Soviet leader said the United States Army was 17th in numerical strength among the military forces of the world at outbreak of World War II. He added:

"Now it occupies first place among capitalist armies.

"While accumulating atomic bombs, American strategists are not ashamed to say openly that bacteriological warfare is being prepared in the United States."

Zhdanov said that the world Communist movement, "while developing on national lines, has at the same time common tasks and interest with the parties of various countries."

MOVE MISUNDERSTOOD

In his speech, which was published by the Communist newspaper Pravda, Zhdanov said there were shortcomings among Communist parties because some members understood that abolition of the Comintern during the war meant liquidation of all ties and contacts among "brotherhood Communist parties."

He said experience had shown that such lack of ties among Communist parties is "incorrect, harmful and unnatural."

Zhandous continued:

"Thus we get a rather strange picture—Socialists who were striving to show that the Comintern supposedly dictated to Communists of all countries with directives from Moscow, and Communists who refrained from meeting each other and consulting on questions of mutual interest because of fear of slander by enemies who talk of 'the hand of Moscow.'"

The Soviet spokesman alleged that a large part of Socialist party leadership, especially in Great Britain and France, is acting as "agent for Imperialist circles in the United States."

Atlantic City Hotel Leap Kills Gloucester Wife

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 22 (INS)—Mrs. Ruth Loring, 35, of 6 Arlington st., Gloucester, Mass., mother of two children, leaped to death early today from the ninth floor of the Ambassador Hotel, here.

She landed in a parking lot. Her fall was witnessed by a taxi driver who summoned police.

County Physician I. E. Leonard returned a verdict of death by suicide.

Charles Loring, Jr., told police he and his wife, his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loring, returned to the hotel shortly after 3 a. m., after spending the evening night-clubbing.

He said that when he and his wife entered their room after the other couple had left them at the fourth floor, Mrs. Loring flung her mink coat on a chair, walked directly to the window and leaped to death.

Loring, a Boston drug executive, was attending the National Wholesale Druggists' Ass'n convention now in session.

N. E. Fires Spreading, 5000 Now Homeless

Three Maine counties in the Biddeford—Biddeford Pool-Kennebunkport triangle were ablaze today as 125 forest fires raged New England's six states in the 22d successive rainless day with still no prospect of a drenching rainfall in the offing. Five thousand persons were reported homeless in Maine. Flying over the burning triangle in a chartered plane, James J. Delaney and Carroll Myett, Boston Evening American staff members, reported the heat of the holocaust could be felt at a height of 5000 feet and describing the scene as terrifying.

Damage to the area, still undetermined, was estimated in millions of dollars with the amount steadily increasing as weary firefighters fought desperately against almost hopeless odds.

More than 200 large and small beach homes along a five-mile stretch of Maine's coastline were already destroyed. Thousands of acres of fertile land were blackened.

The summer resort town of Goose Rocks Beach was leveled. Partly destroyed were Cape Porpoise and Wildes, two other summer resorts not far from Kennebunkport, the last named itself spared temporarily from flames by a fortunate wind shift last night.

HEADS TO BIDDEFORD

Unofficial estimates placed the homeless at 5000, but the figure was mounting steadily as the flames thrust on toward Biddeford.

Over the triangle the plane's pilot, Julie Goldman of Revere Airways, Inc., was forced to fly blind, guided on his course by radio directions.

"The pall of smoke caused by the burning of thousands of pine trees," reported Delaney, "choked us even at 5000 feet. Myett, leaning out to make pictures, had difficulty breathing and his eyes were tear-filled from the smarting smoke.

"Dipping low where we could, when gusts of wind cleared a small patch, we could see the gutted

MARGARET SULLAVAN
Actress Will Seek Divorce

3d Mate Sued By Margaret Sullavan

Talented Margaret Sullavan, who once dazzled Harvard boys as a clerk in the Harvard Co-op Bookstore, and her third husband, Leland Hayward, have hit the divorce trail after 11 years of wedded life, it was disclosed today in Hollywood by Louella Parsons.

Miss Sullavan, who got her stage and screen start through bit parts in Cape Cod playhouses, has been playing in London and friends predicted that she and Leland would patch up their differences now that she is home.

It even looked as if they might be right when Leland showed up in New York 10 days ago to greet his wife on her return from London aboard the Queen Elizabeth.

But apparently the meeting was only to make business arrangements for the divorce, for the following statement was issued in Hollywood by the law office of Lloyd Wright:

"The Leland Haywards announce they have separated, and Mrs. Hayward has instructed her attorney to institute divorce proceedings at once."

The couple were wed at Newport, R. I., in 1936 and have two little girls and a son. Anxious to bring up their children in the East, the Haywards sold their Hollywood home to Actor Fred McMurray and bought an estate in Connecticut.

This is Margaret's third marriage, having been wed formerly to Henry Fonda and William Wyler. Leland formerly was married to a New York socialite.

PIPES OUT!

An inveterate pipe smoker, Gov. Bradford announced today he is not going to light his pipe out-of-doors again until all danger of forest fires is past. He said he was taking this step to emphasize the dangers of smoking near woods.

State House circles, meanwhile, reported that several legislators were considering introducing a bill which would make it a criminal offense to discard lighted cigar or cigaret butts from automobiles. Careless disposal of butts is blamed as the cause of many current woods fires.

BRUNETTE BEAUTY AT NATICK POLICE STATION
Says She Doesn't Remember Her Name, Where She Lives

Girl Amnesia Victim Baffles Natick Cops

An attractive, well dressed brunette in her early 20's, wearing a ring with three small diamonds, walked into the Natick police station just before dawn this morning and asked for help, explaining she didn't know who she was, where she lived, or where she had been.

She told Sgt. William H. Kane she remembered "walking and walking and walking," as well as crying and being sick.

A physician was called to examine her for amnesia and to take her to the Leonard Morse Hospital, Natick.

"While I was walking," she related, "a car stopped and a man motioned to me. I didn't want to get in the car. He got out and came to me. I started to cry and told him I didn't know my name. He told me, 'There are only two places for you, a police station or a hospital.'

"He said we were in Newton. He drove me around to see if I could remember any neighborhoods there and in Natick but I couldn't. He brought me to the police station but told me he didn't want to go in with me because he was a Natick business man and didn't want to become involved in anything."

Sgt. Kane asked her to try the typewriter. She used it skilfullyy.

She could not eat but was able to sip milk. Asked if she thought she was married she said:

"If I am my husband can't be worried very much about me or he would be looking for me."

Natick police teletyped a description of er to other departments, reporting her as between 21 and 25, five feet four, weighing 118 pounds, with wavy brown shoulder-length hair and brown eyes. Under a gray tweed suit she wore a black slip-on sweater.

FIREFIGHTERS BATTLE WOODLAND BLAZE NEAR KENNEBUNKPORT, MAINE

Back to Work Ship Vote Fails

A "back-to-work" meeting of striking Quincy Fore River shipyard workers fizzled today when less than a dozen of the 125 men attending the meeting at the Italian American Hall on Water st., South Quincy, voted to return to their jobs.

Emil Lawson, of Shaw rd., Brockton, presided at the meeting and urged the men to return to their work. Lawson said he is not a member of the striking CIO Shipbuilders' Union, but that he went on strike last June with more than 3000 other men.

He told the meeting he returned to the job five weeks ago because "I cannot live on promises." About 300 are reported to have returned to work.

KEEP AWAY!

Maine State police today warned Bay Staters who have cottages in the fire-swept areas of that state to stay at home until fires are brought under control.

Already, fire fighters have been badly hampered by motorists clogging the roads in a vain effort to reach their property. No outsiders will be allowed in the burning area.

Stolen Car Stalls, But Not His Nerve; Asks Cops Push

South Boston police today are willing to pin the title of "nerviest car thief in the world" on a 23-year-old man they found at 2:30 a. m. tinkering with the motor of a car on Columbia rd., South Boston.

Patrolmen Richard McCambly and John Connors spotted the amateur mechanic and stopped their cruiser to investigate. The man told them the car had stalled on him.

He asked for a push and when the officers refused, the stalled motorist became highly indignant and demanded to know why the minions of the law would not aid an unfortunate citizen with his hands full of trouble.

Their refusal to aid him would be brought to the attention of their superiors, the man said. Then he asked McCambly for a pencil so he could note down the two badge numbers.

At that point the officers decided they would bring the matter to the attention of their superiors and they hauled the youth away to the station, where they found the car had been taken a short time previously on Old Harbor st.

They held him on suspicion of larceny.

U. S. Loses Face in Reich, AMG Policies Blamed

By AUSTEN LAKE
Boston American Staff Correspondent

BERCHTESGADEN, Bavaria (With the U. S. Constabulary)—A swarm of unhappy people in tattered clothes squatted among their bundles in the roadside grass between the little "No Man's Land" which separated the border gates of U. S.-occupied Austria and our German zone.

They were a ragged, hungry, homeless band of men and women from Mittel-Europa whom the Austrian frontier police had shooed into Germany as the easiest way to be rid of them.

But now the U. S. Constabulary, a sergeant and two privates, refused to admit them without proper entry papers. So the vagabond children slept on their mothers' laps or watched with wide-eyed wonder while the elders hunched among their filthy sacks and valises containing all their worldly goods.

Despair and fatigue were etched deeply in their weather-burned faces.

"They're hot potatoes," said a teen-aged U. S. trooper. "Nobody wants 'em, I gotta wait for my captain and he's gotta wait for the Military Government. They gotta wait on both."

Whether these 52 people were admitted to the U. S. German zone I could not wait to see. But the chances are strong that they were shipped back to an Austrian camp, homeless, dispossessed and undesirable. For these are the wandering Volksdeutsch, or German minority peoples who are expelled from the Sudeten, Hungary, Poland and Jugoslavia in reprisal for Hitler's "protective invasions."

There are more than 2,000,000 such expellees in Bavaria alone, mostly Sudetens stripped of their property and exiled by force. They are called EP's, (expelled persons), not to be confused with DP's (displaced persons) whom the Germans imported as forced labor during the war. The difference is that the EP's are basically German, while the DP's, of whom there are around 65,000 in Bavaria, are aliens—Poles, Hungarians, Liths, etc. Still, when it comes to feeding, housing and clothing them, they amount to the same thing.

The unhappy Volksdeutsch are one of the strange anomalies of postwar Germany. For these people were used by Hitler as the original pretext to seize Czechslovakia, Austria and Poland. In his well-remembered harangues of 1937-39 he guaranteed the civil rights of all Volksdeutsch in bordering nations, saying: "I insure people of German origin beyond our frontiers the same protection as homeland Germans." At the time native Germans screamed applause. But now they don't want these Volksdeutsch, whom they regard with bitter hostility as "foreign intruders." The Volksdeutsch are not welcomed into the German family.

GOING HOME AGAIN—Mrs. Luise Alexander, German bride of a former Army pilot, waits at LaGuardia Field, New York, for a plane to take her back to Germany. The couple lived in Dallas, Tex., until he was sent to her home town, Frankfurt, Germany, as a salesman.

As one old Tyrolean told me today.

"Ha! That was Adolf's crazy idea. They are Czech, Slav and Hungarian citizens—raus mit!"

For there is a recurring phrase, conveniently used whenever a German repudiates what he does not want—"That was Adolf's idea."

Bavarians are a curiously homogenous people, quick to resent "aliens." And everybody who does not come from Bavaria is alien, including all other Germans. Like Greta Garbo, they "vant to be alone." If allowed a referendum, they would probably vote for restoration of the old Bavarian monarchy, of which Prince Rupprecht, now living in Munich, is the lineal heir since Ludwig III was pulled off his pedestal in 1918. Rupprecht is willing, but the U. S. Military Government is not. And there is another curious anomaly.

"You Americans tell us 'Now

Police Ring Doorbells in Bandit Hunt

Police made a door to door hunt in the Westland ave., Back Bay, area today for a dark, bushy-haired gunman who robbed a Massachusetts ave. cleansing shop and then scattered commuters in a gun-waving dash through the Massachusetts Elevated station.

The gunman ordered three girl clerks to pass over the day's receipts at the Coolidge Cleansing Shop and when they refused he scooped $50 from the cash register and fled.

The girls, Mary Kilty, 17, of Euston rd., Brighton; Josephine Kirshaw, 17, of Marlboro st., and Barbar Lewis, 17, of Blackwood st., both Back Bay, chased the thief as he fled into the El station waving a gun and ordering patrons out of his way.

While the girls shouted "Stop thief," he dashed straight through the station into Newbury st. where he jumped into the taxi of Chester Ciegars of Newbury st. and ordered him to drive to Westland ave.

There the thief leaped out and Ciegers shouted for police. The gunman, believed to live in a Westland ave. apartment, is about 30 years old, 160 pounds

New Haven Rail Strike Threatens

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22—The New Haven Railroad today faced the prospect of a crippling strike, following the vote of more than 90 per cent of the 5000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in favor of a walkout to enforce their demand for a wage adjustment.

The general committee of the BRT union reported the vote was complete except for some 35 ballots from a Boston unit still to be counted.

J. J. Hammill, chairman of the BRT committee, said the general committee officers will set a strike date and submit it to A. F. Whitney, national president of the independent union, who authorized the strike vote.

A spokesman for the railroad has already declared that it will seek the services of the National Mediation Board

Wheat Hits 30-Year Top At $3.10¾ a Bushel

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (INS)—wheat futures continued to climb on the Chicago board of trade and for the second consecutive day hit a new 30-year high.

December wheat spiraled four cents to sell for $3.10¾ a bushel in early trading. The all-time high was set in May, 1917, when the May delivery brought a price of 3.25 a bushel.

Poultryless Days Seen Nearing End

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The citizens food committee decides today whether to call off poultryless Thursday. Chairman Charles Luckman assembled his seven-member executive committee for an afternoon meeting to weigh a "final offer" from the poultry and feed industries to save grain for Europe in other ways.

Luckman himself was reported leaning toward the plan, but committee officials said the decision would be left up to the executive body.

The proposal pledges specific savings of 16,800,000 bushels of grain from November through January by culling out poultry flocks and reducing the number of chicks hatched. It forecasts another 16,000,000-bushel saving through an industry-wide feed conservation drive.

The plan has been presented to President Truman's cabinet food committee for appraisal and analysis, but poultry and feed industry spokesmen left town today saying they had "received no assurances whatsoever."

New Mill Plans Huge Output of Newsprint

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Frederick C. Bagley, Augusta, Me., paper manufacturer, declared a proposed $65,000,000 paper mill in New Brunswick "will alleviate the newsprint shortage to the extent of 350,000 to 400,000 tons a year."

Bagley, a promoter of the project, said plans "have been perfected to the point where the start of construction may be inaugurated immediately—as soon as details of organization and capitalization are perfected."

Man Found Shot to Death On Common

Apparently a suicide, an unidentified, well-drssed man about 38 or 40, was found shot to death today on Boston Common. He had been shot through the side of the head. A revolver lay beside the body which was removed to the Southern Mortuary.

An early morning passerby spotted the victim stretched on the grass between Park st., and afayette Mall.

Police described the man as of slim build, 5 ft. 8 in. tall and weighing about 140 pounds. He wore a brown striped suit, a red and black striped tie, blue shirt, low black shoes, brown socks and a brown felt hat.

The weapon found beside the body was a .32 caliber revolver. Four cylinder were empty and one cartridge had been discharged.

CHINA REDS REPULSED

PEIPING, Oct. 22 (AP)—Nationalist forces have crushed a strong Communist drive on the great Fushun coal mines.

Community Tax Supporters Urge Adoption at Hearing

Advocates of the Community Tax Law bill, designed to save $83,000,000 a year for Bay State taxpayers, will urge passage today before a special recess commission in Room 249, State House.

Heading the group are Reps. Peter Jordan of Revere and David Cleary of Charlestown, who long have supported the plan under which husband and wife could split their total incomes for Federal tax purposes, a program in force in many states.

At hearings before a Senate committee last spring, scores of Senators and Representatives, as well as leaders of labor unions, consumers and taxpayers' groups registered themselves in favor of the bill. By reaffirming their wishes today, proponents of the measure will carry great weight with the committee.

Rep. Cleary declared meanwhile that he feels sure the special commission will act favorably on the measure if all people interested in it appeared today or are recorded.

"As far as I can see," Cleary said, "the Bar Association is the only group in the state opposed to this bill for saving our people millions of dollars.

Notables Join Boy Who Bats For Ruth at Bro. Gilbert Rites

LOWELL, Oct. 22 (AP)—The mourners of Brother Gilbert today numbered important men in many fields and one small boy who was there to say good-by for a great friend who couldn't.

Frank Haggerty, of Danvers, a freckled-faced 10-year-old, knelt at a funeral mass with notables of church, baseball and business and said his own prayer, and one on behalf of Babe Ruth—the sports discovery and long friend of the Xaverian priest, who died Sunday at 62.

The mass for the man who first saw big league drive in the Baltimore kid who became home-run king was celebrated at St. Peter's Church with Bishop John J. Wright, auxiliary bishop of Boston, presiding.

Celebrant was the Rev. Clarence A. Macksey, chaplain at Keith Academy, where the Rev. Brother Gilbert, C. F. X., passed away.

SPORTS LEADERS ATTEND

Sports leaders like Tom Yawkey and Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox and Lou Perini and John Quinn of the Boston Braves were there.

At that service and at others in Immaculate Conception Church in Malden and at Mission Church former pupils and friends packed the pews in a last tribute to the brother himself and to a great friendship which began in 1914.

That was the year Brother Gilbert, then baseball coach at Mt. St. Joseph's College in Baltimore, Md., went over to nearby St. Mary's Industrial School to look over its baseball team.

The Brother watched a kid in blue overalls catching and Brother Gilbert decided that youngster was playing the wrong position because as he liked to remember:

"I said to myself that's a great left-handed pitcher they got catching in there."

Brother Gilbert took his southpaw find to the manager of the Baltimore Orioles and thus started the career which became an American sports legend.

WORDS OF TRIBUTE

Ill in New York, the Babe said that the death of Brother Gilbert "deprives America and the young kids of a great man." But the Babe couldn't get a doctor's permission to come to his friend's funeral.

So today, in the way baseball players talk, young Frank Haggerty batted for the Babe.

The boy wrote Babe from his home and asked if he could go to the mass for him. The Babe wired the boy "Go and God bless you" and said "I am unable to go but shall feel I am there in spirit through your gracious gesture."

Today important men and ordinary men spoke words of tribute about Brother Gilbert.

And many repeated to themselves as well what the small boy wrote to the Babe:

"I'm sorry your friend died."

U. S. Balks Alien Proxy Bride Entry

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Barney Hagen of Billings, Mont., sped to New York today to try to help the 21-year-old English girl he married by proxy in 1946 and who is being detained at Ellis Island by immigration authorities.

Hagen, 31, spent yesterday alone in the Minneapolis hotel bridal suite he had engaged because of the delay in arrival from England of the plane bearing his bride, the former Eileen Frances Green of London. He had expected his wife—whom he never has seen except in pictures—last night.

But the Northwest Airlines officials in Minneapolis told him his bride had been held at Ellis Island because the visa upon which she was traveling had expired. Hagen boarded a plane for New York.

He said attorneys had advised him all papers, including Mrs. Hagen's papers, were in order.

Meanwhile, officials at Ellis Island would not comment last night on the case or give reasons for Mrs. Hagen's detention.

China Dooms Prince's Daughter as Jap Spy

PEIPING, Oct. 22 (AP)—Yoshiko Hawashima, alleged member of Japan's notorious Black Dragon society, was sentenced to death today for espionage.

Yoshiko, whose father, Prince Su, was a cousin of Henry Pu-Yi, puppet emperor of Manchuria, showed no emotion as the sentence was read. She came into court wearing a man's black overcoat, green slacks and black shoes. Her close-cropped hair was well-groomed.

Youth Taken to State Prison After Murder Sentence

Coombes Jauntily Starts Life Term in Malden Sex-Killing

The gates of Charlestown's grim State Prison clanged shut today behind Robert L. Coombes, 17, of Malden, sentenced to life imprisonment for the sex slaying of 11-year-old Jacqueline Maxwell, a neighbor girl. His heart-broken mother, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Coombes, sobbed.

"Now my mind is at rest . . . he'll get in no further trouble."

The young reform school parolee was given the life term by Judge John V. Sullivan in Middlesex Superior Court, after he had pleaded guilty to second-degree murder of the Maxwell child.

"I hope he never breathes the fresh air of freedom again and if he ever comes up for parole while I am living, that I be notified so I may speak on the subject," Judge Sullivan declared.

Shortly after sentence was pronounced, Coombes, dressed in an old plaid lumberman's jacket, blue-striped shirt and blue tweed pants, walked jauntily out of East Cambridge jail to begin serving his sentence. Grinning, he turned to his jailers and remarked:

"Well, I guess I might as well enjoy this ride. It probably will be the last I ever take."

The youth, who psychiatrists had testified had acted like a savage beast that followed irresistible impulses, showed no outward sign of emotion as the court condemned him to prison for the rest of his natural life.

Seated directly behind him, in the first row of spectators' seats, was the mother who had surrendered him to police after she had been informed of the murder of the Maxwell girl last Mar. 2. Her head was bowed and she sobbed bitterly as the case reached its climax.

'His 1 Great Love' Still Unquenched

The story of an enduring love, unquenched by death, is that of Charles Palmer Emerson, 82-year-old scholar, poet and philosopher, who lives in hermit-like seclusion in a neglected dwelling within the shadow of the state capitol at Augusta, Me.

Enshrined in a copper urn by his bedside are the ashes of the woman he loved—the wife, long dead, who is still to him a living and glowing presence. He lives with her, and defies death.

The amazing story of this serene octogenarian and the love he holds for his late wife will be told in "His One Great Love," to be published in Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

King Henry VIII's Iron Pants Show His Girth a Perfect 34

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The substantial girth of Charles Laughton to the contrary notwithstanding, King Henry VIII, was not too big for his britches.

A pair of his old iron pants, like those he wore when he wrestled King Francis I of France on the Field of the Cloth of Gold, has just been turned up to prove it.

King Henry VIII

Charles Laughton

Henry was a handsome 34—meaning inches around the middle. He only got fat after he got old and gave up such sports as wrestling with other kings.

For years one of Henry's iron battle suits—the Sherman tanks of the days when knights were bold—has been on show in the Tower of London. But the pants were missing.

Out at Scrivelsby Court, where scions of the Dymoke family have held forth as king's champion for 700 years, trustees of the Tower found another iron suit the other day—and the bottoms matched Henry's top.

Put the bottom to the top, and you have a Henry VIII with a 34-inch breadbasket. Not only that, he was 6 feet tall, a bit of a giant for those days.

All in all, it was not a suit to fit Charles Laughton, but some Britons remained unconvinced about Henry's size.

"Short and fat 'e was," a stenographer insisted, "like Charles Laughton in the film."

That wrestling match? No sports writers were present and the result was not recorded.

Aussies Rap Red Warmonger Blasts

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Australia countered Soviet charges of "warmongering" with a measure urging the United Nations Assembly to condemn untrue propaganda picturing national personages as promoters of war.

The United States delegation, one of the principal targets of Russia's charges, immediately indicated it had hoped to avoid complications in imminent debate on "warmonger" allegations.

Obviously aiming at Russia, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australia's minister for external affairs, proposed formally that the Assembly castigate propaganda which falsely accuses national officials or other responsible persons of warmongering.

Sugar Price Scare Spurs Buying in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (INS)—An apparently baseless "sugar scare" hit New York, resulting in the heaviest sales since the war.

LONDON, Oct. 22—Princess Elizabeth stole most of the show at another royal ceremony today—the unveiling by King George VI of a memorial statue to his father, the bearded, kindly monarch Elizabeth called in childhood, "Grandpa England."

A message of congratulation to the princess on her forthcoming marriage to Lt. Philip Mountbatten was introduced today in Commons by Prime Minister Attlee and seconded by Winston Churchill.

Mass Shooting Baffles N. Y. Police

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (INS)—Police early today were puzzled by a young gunman's apparently aimless killing of two persons and wounding of two more on a crowded Greenwich Village street late last night.

The six-foot assailant, wearing an Eisenhower jacket and Army pants, suddenly appeared on West 10th st. and began firing into a crowd gathered on stoops for the hottest Oct. 22 night on record.

Eight shots from his Army automatic fatally wounded Patsy Graziano, 19, war veteran, and Mrs. Theresa Passorella, 67, and felled Salvatore Fusco, 23, Veterans' Administration employe, and Lew Rubizzia, 17, a fruit dealer.

As the crowd scattered, screaming, the killer calmly walked away and vanished.

VFW Asks Truman Act Fast on Draft Law

By DAN MARKEL

Boston Evening American, Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—President Truman was urged both orally and in writing by Ray Brannaman, national commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, to call Congress into special session to act on universal military training.

Brannaman's appeal was virtually identical to that made last week by William Randolph Hearst in a letter printed in all Hearst newspapers.

"Russia and the United States are at war politically and economically," the VFW chief told the President during a 40-minute White House conference.

"Russia is fighting us with false propaganda and obstruction of every United States peace efforts.

"We are attempting to fight back in Europe with our dollars and our food."

BEST WAR DETERRENT

"The best assurance we can have that this conflict will not grow into a shooting war is for Congress to enact universal military training immediately."

Brannaman gave the President copies of mandates adopted at the recent national VFW convention in Cleveland demanding a special congressional session on training legislation "to provide adequate manpower for our armed forces."

The national VFW commander advised the President:

"There is also an immediate need for congressional action to insure the development and maintenance of the most modern and powerful air force in the world and to equip our Army and Navy with the latest and most scientific weapons."

President Truman was noncommittal on special session plans, said members of the VFW delegation who accompanied Brannaman to the White House.

TRUMAN BACKS UMT

They said the President emphasized his strong belief that universal military training is needed, but gave the impression that he hoped to avoid a special session if possible.

President Truman, in turn, urged that the Veterans of Foreign Wars vigorously support the Administration program for aiding Europe's democratic nations.

Here are the point by point recommendations on national security and the armed services placed before the President by Com. Brannaman.

1—Institution of a system of universal military training without delay.

2—Expansion and modernization of the National Guard and other reserve components.

3—Retrievement of American air supremacy through annual replacement of 6000 advanced military aircraft.

4—Transfer of the functions and responsibility for development of atomic energy from civilian to military establishments.

5—Settlement of Alaska by veterans as an outpost of national security.

6—Action by the attorney general, at the order of the President, to outlaw Communism in the United States.

7—Encouragement of scientific military research.

OUT OF THE PAST

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 22 (AP)—War veteran Charles E. Jenkins was buying work clothes in an Army-Navy store here when a familiar looking khaki shirt caught his eye.

It was the shirt he wore through the Solomon Islands campaign more than three years ago and turned in when he was graduated from officers candidate school in 1944.

His initials and serial number were in Jenkins' own handwriting. When Jenkins submitted his dogtag as final proof, the manager gave him the shirt.

For Those Kind Words.. Thank You
LT. COLONEL HINES

BEING ORDINARY MORTALS, we enjoy the occasional compliments that come our way. To be otherwise wouldn't be human. And amid this never-ceasing drive to improve our service to our customers, to have an unsolicited, sincere, right-from-the-heart pat on the back, like this very recent one from Lt. Colonel Paul Hines, is refreshing indeed.

● Now Lt. Colonel Hines needs no introduction around these parts. His friends are legion, and his long military record as an officer in two world wars has brought him the fame he so justly deserves.

● But I wonder if the rank and file of his thousands of friends know that when it comes to food the Colonel is an epicure. Whether his vast knowledge of good, nourishing foods comes from his long military service, I have no idea, but of this I am sure, few men I know can equal his keen judgment of the dietary needs of human beings.

● So when Colonel Hines, referring to our beef stew, wrote me the other day . . . "Tell the world about that inimitable, esculent, and succulent beef stew that you sell for thirty-five cents. It is superb! Those big New York hotels, at $2.00 per copy, can't compare with it!" . . . well, all of us here at Waldorf appreciated the big compliment.

He Didn't Even Wash Dishes

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Vivian Ide returned home after a week's absence and discovered that a "big young man" had been her uninvited guest.

Mrs. Ide and her maid were about to enter the Ide home yesterday when the "big young man" bolted out the door and fled, scrambling over backyard fences, Mrs. Ide told police.

A survey of the house, she said, disclosed the intruder had eaten "at least a week's supply" of food and had slept in her bed.

"He didn't even bother to wash the dishes and silverware," Mrs. Ide told police.

All Naval, Sea, Aircraft To Have Position 'Fixes'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP) —All Navy combatant ships, planes and auxiliary vessels have been equipped with Loran, an electronic navigational device, it was announced today.

Accurate position "fixes" can be obtained hundreds of miles at sea from 32 stations operated by the Coast Guard and covering the approches to the Orient, Alaska, Hawaii, North America, the North Atlantic and England. Loran, short for long range navigation, is accurate within one per cent of the distance from the shore transmitting station to the ship or plane, the Navy said.

Armenian Exodus Flayed by Vets

A joint probe by the FBI and several other Federal agencies into the planned mass exodus of Armenians to their Soviet-dominated homeland was understood today to be progressing today, as the State Department in Washington voiced a "hands-off" policy and indicated the departure would not be interfered with.

At the same time, the mass exodus which will have hundreds of few Englanders among its numers, with Massachusetts leading the other five states, was brand as an "ungrateful act" by the American Veterans Ass'n.

Giles J. Allen, state commander, in a telegram to Secretary of State Marshall and FBI Direc J. Edgar Hoover, urged that government do all in its power to speed the exodus of the "ungrateful" Armenians, "who earned this country and earned their living."

Jordan Marsh Fashions Viewed by 3000 Women

More than 3000 Greater Boston women employed in Boston stores greeted with enthusiasm the "Speaking of Fashion" style show that was presented at Symphony Hall by the Jordan Marsh Co., as the climax of a series of lectures for women who work.

Presented more as a musicale than as a fashion show, the two-hour revue dedicated to "Women Who Work" a slogan made famous by Jordan's, was staged and directed by Edna Somers, the store's fashion director. Swiftly paced, gay and spontaneous, it was complete in six acts and four entreacts.

Each act expressed the trend toward alluring feminine fashions and were staged against a background of velvet black, white and gray. The presentation was interspersed with ballroom dancing and singing.

Keyed to the budgets of women who work, the show offered them a varied choice of high fashion, the newest fabrics and colors, and all within the reach of the most economical purse. Music for the show was by Guy Ormandy and Dave Forman was the featured soloist.

Cameron Thompson, vice-president in charge of merchandising at Jordan Marsh, opened the program with an address of welcome to the audience.

The contest judges were Miss Eleanor Roberts, Miss Elinor Williams, Miss Sally Stuart and Miss Ruth Mugglebee, fashion editor, Record-American.

O'DEWEY

"SPEAKING OF FASHION"—Rita Carroll (left), of Boston Consolidated Gas Co., and Jean Gournaris, of Lever Bros., Cambridge, model afternoon dresses before 3000 women who work in Boston stores at the Jordan Marsh "Speaking of Fashion" show in Symphony Hall. The styles were keyed to the budgets of women who work. The event climaxed a series of lectures aimed to aid style-conscious business women in Boston.

Canada Lifts Curb On Meat, Grain Prices

OTTAWA, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Canadian government took another stride toward complete decontrol, eliminating price ceilings on meat and meat products, oats, barley and screenings. Subsidies on grain used for livestock feeding will be discontinued.

The action, effective today, thus narrowed the field of restricted items to a handful of essentials such as rents, sugar, fats, oils, wheat, flaxseed, and sunflower seed.

Krug Calls Parley On Coal Shortage

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP) —Coal producers, shippers, dealers, miners and representatives of the public will meet with Interior Sec. Krug tomorrow to size up next winter's fuel supply.

The meeting will be held against a background of increasing fuel needs abroad and complaints from retail dealers in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and other Midwest cities that coal stocks for sale to householders are extremely low.

Meanwhile, Krug invited the petroleum industry to advise the government what can be done about prospective oil and gas shortages for the next 12 months.

Forest Fires

shells of scores of homes and even tenement houses. Some of them looked as though they had been bombed from the air.

"A heavy black line of smoke was clearly visible on the horizon 50 miles before we got to the area.

"York Beach was under a pall. So was Bells Beach, Kennebunk and Alfred, several miles southwest of Biddeford. In the heart of the flaming area we were forced to climb high enough to keep from strangling and then we appeared to be skimming over a roof of smoke.

"Biddeford's airport seemed to be burned out. Building foundations gaped emptily. Homes were burning and abandoned to the flames by fire fighters who were trying to save the large rarea rather than concentrate on individual dwellings. Many seashore estates were devastated.

EVACUEES IN BIDDEFORD

"Now and then we saw what appeared to be puffs of explosions. Route 1 is cut off at Kennebunkport and so is the B. & M. railroad."

Of more than 40 fires raging in Maine, State Forestry Supervisor Austin H. Wilkins, sleepless along with thousands of volunteer and regular fire-fighters, listed seven other areas in danger of complete destruction.

They were Kennebunkport, Waterboro-Shapleigh, Fryeburg, Bar Harbor, Lincolnville, Madison-Norridgewock and Livermore Falls-Fayete-Wayne.

Biddeford itself, a mill town of 20,000 swelled to far beyond that number by evacuees, was ardly out of the danger zone as the flames ate their way steadily toward the community.

40 MORE IN BAY STATE

In Massachusetts, the division of forestry of the State Conservation Department reported 40 new fires have started since Monday.

The worst of these, said a spokesman, was burning in Beverly, where 400 acres have already been scorched. The flames, apparently controlled at 4 a. m., broke out anew an hour later.

In Shrewsbury, 600 acres parallel with Route 20 have been burning for nine days. More than 900 ares are still aflame in Sturbridge. Royalston's old state forest is in danger of being levelled.

Two units of the National Guard were summoned from Pittsfield to join the battle against a fire racing along a quarter-mile front on the eastern slope of October Mt. in Washington township.

The units were ordered out by Berkshire County Sheriff J. Bruce McIntyre. A mere handful of men—estimated at 50—had been fighting the blaze alone until then.

Officials of the state's forestry division feel many fires are being set by pyromaniacs, but they blame the rekindling of apparently controlled fires on the inexperience of fire-fighters and the lethargy of citizens in threatened and burning areas.

State Fire Warden Joseph L. Peabody amplified the charge of lethargy on the part of townspeople by stating many of them go to the movies or other amusement places, feed the chickens or just ignore the situation.

FIRES NEAR LYNN WOODS

Near Boston, overworked firemen of Lynn and surounding cities were battling a stubborn blaze in woded lands between Parkland ave. and the Lynn woods. In Newburyport, five separate fires were roaring.

Aurele J. Tremblay, 36, Kennebunk blacksmith, was struck by a piece of arriving apparatus while doing traffic duty in that Maine town. He died en route to Maine General Hospital.

Missing is Francis Smith, 35, of Kennebunkport, who was last seen battling a blaze in the Cape Porpoise area. Three children were feared dead for hours in the Goose Rocks district, site of the greatest evacuation furore. They were found late last night.

MAINE'S WORST FIRE

Officials in Maine termed the series of blazes which roared in widely scattered areas—along the seashore, in farmland districts and in mountain sections . . as the worst forest conflagration in the state's history.

New Hampshire was but slightly better off as new blazes threatened a score of communities as well as the entire Presidential Range, a beauty spot of the nation.

Perhaps the worst of all right now is roaring in an ever-widening sweep through the New Hampshire townships of Newbury, Washington and Bradford. The district is in the heart of the slope area of the Presidential Range.

Fire fighters battled on without rest and must continue to do so on the basis of a long range weather bureau forecast. The slightest kind of showers may fall in some sections on Friday but the precipitation is scheduled to be only a fraction of an inch, hardly enough "to put out a cigaret."

BAY STATE BLAZE

Massachusetts, too, had a new and big blaze under way that threatened to sweep a 15-mile area around Fitchburg, Ashby and Ashburnham and then roar on over the New Hampshire line.

Fire Chief Ernest Caouette of Fitchburg declared an emergency today after being notified of the fire by the Ashby Lookout Station. The blaze was raging in the Ashby reservoir section, 12 miles from the New Hampshire line, and spreading wildly in all directions. Help was called from every community that could spare men or equipment.

In the latter fire, State Police were called in at once and began evacuating people living on the outskirts of Ashburnham.

Vermont had a series of blazes, the worst at Greenboro, while Connecticut and Rhode Island did not escape. With all woods closed to campers and hunters in New England's six states, Gov. Dewey of New York took matching action today after 200 fires were reported in the 8,500,000 Adirondack playground area.

Maine still counted by far the greatest destruction.

Hundreds of homeless were cared for by more fortunate neighbors and scores were housed in armories in Biddeford and Portland, as well as in town halls in smaller communities.

Gov. Horace Hildreth announced a state of emergency, sending out the State Guard and 500 state trucks to prevent looting and save what was left of belongings in burned out areas.

Huge Populations on the Move—One of the greatest mass transfers of population in history has been taking place since the partition of India into the two states of Pakistan and India. Here thousands of Hindus reach the border city of Amritsar en route to India, as they flee the bloody conflict with Moslems of Pakistan. Meanwhile, the movement of Moslems goes on in the opposite direction.

THE TIDELANDS DECISION

BY REFUSING to reconsider—or to reverse—its decision in the California Tidelands Case, the Supreme Court of the United States has imposed a special duty upon the members of Congress, particularly on those from New England.

That duty is to prevent an act of nullification of the Constitution by the very agency which is supposedly especially charged with the obligation to sustain the Constitution.

The history of the case presents the issue clearly.

Claiming "paramount rights" to submerged oil lands off the California coast, the Federal Government sued for possession.

The action was unprecedented.

Believing it had unimpaired jurisdiction, California had previously issued leases to several companies to drill for oil.

Last June the Supreme Court decided against California, instructing both the Federal Government and the State to prepare decrees declaring the Federal Government to be the owner of the lands.

Instead, California filed a memorandum saying it had not been able to construct any kind of decree under the court's order which would be valid.

The State also asked the court for a rehearing, alleging that the decision was not only "contrary to precedent" but also that it ESTABLISHED a precedent for unpredictable future confiscation of private property on the mere basis of a "vague concept of national power."

Such a precedent disregards the provisions of the Constitution with respect to the rights and reserved powers of the States.

It implants in our legal and judicial system a "precedent" upon which the nationalization of valuable or productive properties may be arbitrarily effected without any warrant in law.

California did not stand alone before the tribunal.

Massachusetts and other States, perceiving the danger to their own sovereignty and geographical integrity, joined themselves with California in its defense.

In July, a month after the California decision was rendered, the Governors' Conference at Salt Lake City voted to support legislation in Congress which would ASSERT and ASSURE to the States ownership of their tidelands and of all soil, mineral and oil under their navigable inland waters.

OFFICIAL FACTS

THE New England power trust somewhat boastfully contends that the supply of electricity is adequate for our six States.

The trust further implies that we should consider ourselves more fortunate than the people in other parts of the nation where electrical shortages are a probability.

Not all the readers of the power trust's statements are familiar with the reports which are regularly issued by the Federal Power Commission and, for that reason, they are apt to accept the statements at their face value.

Here are a few records from the Federal Power Commission which should prove enlightening to New Englanders:

In the great water power city of Tacoma, Wash., the average annual consumption of electricity per residential customer is 4178 KILOWATT-HOURS.

In Boston, where most of the electricity is obtained from scarce coal which has to be imported, the average annual consumption of electricity per residential customer is ONLY 581 KILOWATT-HOURS.

So, according to the Tacoma standards, there is a PERMANENT ELECTRICAL FAMINE IN BOSTON.

Incidentally, the cost of 100 kilowatt-hours of electricity is $1.70 IN TACOMA and $4.80 IN BOSTON.

Furthermore, there is an extra charge in Boston to cover the rising price of coal.

Little imagination is required to see what would happen if the people of Boston suddenly began to consume electricity in the Tacoma manner.

"BOY WANTED, twenty six dollars a week. Forty-hour week." That's the sign I saw displayed today in a window on Madison ave. near Fifty-Ninth st., Manhattan. The first job I acquired as a boy paid three dollars a week and the sign said: "Strong boy wanted." My top salary as a juvenile wage earner was five dollars a week. However, I am not going to cry "I wuz robbed!" The dollar was a powerful purchasing medium in those days. Five-dollar-a-week office boys were then big shots in the younger business set.

PASSING BY: J. B. Priestley, Yorkshire novelist and dramatist. Here for the opening of his play "The Inspector Calls." Haven't seen this opus yet but am not going to miss it. I never miss any play or picture that has a Scotland Yard detective in it. Jean Arthur. The somewhat shy and retiring Hollywoodian. Said to be one of the two feminine film stars who can still blush. The other is Greer Garson. Jean was born under the sign of Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Women born under this sign are very much in love with love. A man who has a Libra wife must treat her as if he were not married to her. Libra women like home life but not housework. They are the greatest sufferers in the zodiac from the current shortage of domestics. A Libra without a maid reminds you of that song "I'll Never Smile Again." Or so say the stargazers.

Jean Arthur

THAT ARGUMENT: A man can do practically anything a woman can, and do it better. Ever since I so stated women have been saying: "Oh, yeah! Then let a man have a baby." Or words to that effect. This is a naive statement. It entirely ignores the fact that male co-operation is necessary in the production of offspring. That is a situation which automatically bars the birth of a baby from discussion of the claim aforementioned. The fact that so many women considered the birth of a child an exclusively female achievement reveals why fathers are pushed so far in the background at times of blessed events.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: It wouldn't amaze me if Larry MacPhail returned to organized baseball as the owner of a Los Angeles baseball club with a major league franchise . . . Now I have a reader in East Palatka, Fla., across the St. John's river from Palatka. Wonder how the swimming is in the St. John's river? No wandering crocodiles about, I hope.

PLEASE NOTE: Did you read about that New Yorker who married both a mother and a daughter, lived in the same apartment with his two wives and had children by both but refused to support some of the young ones? In addition to being a bigamist, this man was an alcoholic. His occupation was given as "caretaker for animals used for experimental purposes by a well-known hospital." Guess a hard-boiled, unfeeling heel is the only person qualified for a job like that. And even this fellow had to keep drunk most of the time to stand it.

GREAT ACTOR: There are some discerning students of the drama who claim the greatest of all Shakespearian actors was an Irishman from Cork. That was Barry Sullivan, born 1821, died 1891. Included in the innumerable outstanding stage achievements of this remarkable Thespian was that of playing Hamlet at least once a week every week for 40 years!

OLD-TIMER: As to who is the oldest old-timer honoring this department with his or her attention, I cannot say. But I have a feminine reader who was in the chorus of "The Black Crook." I believe this was the first show presented in the U. S. A. in which the ladies of the ensemble wore tights. Perhaps one of this subscriber's granddaughters could write a book titled "Grandmother Wore Tights."

BABY TALK: "Your statement that brunch is a baby talk word is stupid," writes a Boston admirer. Is that so? Well, it sounds like baby talk to me. It's bad enough for the ladies to talk like babies without men going in for it. A man who talks about his "brunch" is just a step away from calling his socks his "sockies."

UNUSUAL FAMILY: Mrs. Frances Donohue of San Francisco has six children in the service of the Catholic Church: The Revs. Patrick, Joseph and Hugh Donohoe, Mother Helen of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Menlo Park, Cal.; Sister Joanne Marie and Sister Marie Patrice. Quite a record. Incidentally, Texas Guinan, night club star of the yesteryear, had six uncles who were Catholic priests.

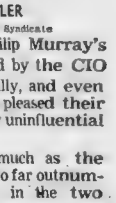
FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Philip Murray's piety has been exploited by the CIO and the union racket generally, and even by Communists when it has pleased their purpose to pose as only a few uninfluential pests.

That is all right, inasmuch as the wickedness of the rogues, who far outnumber reasonably decent men in the two great job-trusts, has been advertised to the great detriment of the CIO and the AFL.



Westbrook Pegler

Of churchly mein, Mr. Murray ought to be a sandwich man worth his hire in reassurance to the Christian laity.

Our religious quirks and taboos are beyond description to say nothing of analysis, and we should not begrudge the infidels of Moscow their raucous laughter over this.

In the case of Murray it is wise propaganda to drag in the irrelevant fact that he is a Catholic.

THERE ARE MANY serious differences of opinion among Catholics on political matters. There are Catholics as earnest in their religious faith as Murray is, who detest his CIO and its faults in detail as ardently as he defends them.

However, none of them does so in the role of a Catholic and there is a very strong and very spurious advantage for Murray in this.

Last June 20, Murray spoke on a national broadcast, one of those too-polite and fuzzy babbles, whose topic was the Taft-Hartley Bill.

In his speech he said: "On Tuesday of this week, the Catholic Church of the United States, speaking as it does, I believe, for about 23 million subjects, through the bishops of that church, referred to the bill as a return of Bourbonism to the people of the United States, referred to it as a vicious bill, an anti-democratic bill."

A correspondent who brought this to my attention said that on inquiry at St. Patrick's Cathedral denial was made that the Catholic Church had taken any official stand on this law, at that time only a bill in Congress.

The reason why the church did not take the action which Mr. Murray erroneously said it took is that this is a matter in which every Catholic, like every other citizen, has a right to make his OWN decision.

I CHECKED the recording of Murrays remarks and verified the version stated above. That is, Philip Murray, that man of famous piety and truth, did say that the Catholic Church, speaking through the bishops, obviously meaning all the bishops and not just some or even a majority, had condemned this as a vicious bill.

Mr. Murray wanted all the Catholics who heard his voice to believe that their church had used this language, knowing that most of them would be seriously impressed by that word "vicious."

A Catholic is unlikely to hold with anything which all the bishops, in the wisdom, have solemnly condemned as vicious, although many Catholics probably would rely on their own intelligence nevertheless.

I RECENTLY PUT this problem to Charles Ridder, the publisher of the Catholic News. Mr. Ridder is an eminent layman and his paper is an acknowledged authority on Catholic matters.

Mr. Ridder said the church, as such, had taken NO POSITION on the Taft-Hartley Bill, or, since its passage, on the law. The only expression Mr. Ridder could find even remotely related to the statement spoken by Murray was contained in the Labor Day statement of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. This was issued on Aug. 25, TWO MONTHS AFTER Murray's statement was made on the air.

The Social Action Department of the N. C. W. C. does not speak for "The Church" and its statements may be disregarded by Catholics, few of whom ever even read or hear of them.

This statement said: "We have declared our judgment that the act is awkward and unworkable in many respects and is an inadequate and short-sighted approach to the very complicated problem of industrial relations."

THE BROOKLYN TABLET, another authoritative Catholic paper, printed a criticism of the Welfare Council's Social action Department for urging President Truman to veto the bill.

The Tablet soon got a letter asserting that the Welfare Council represented the bishops. Therefore, the Tablet inquired and found that "any number of bishops" disagreed with the council's statement.

So endeth our lesson on the reliability of thy word of the CIO's president.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22 (INS)—Lauren Bacall told me she wouldn't insist on making all her movies with Humphrey Bogart (the man who pays her bills) if she could get a really good role with another star.

Well, Bogey's Baby apparently meant it, for she now co-stars with Dennis Morgan in "Cleopatra Arms." That's the name of an apartment house in mid-Manhattan, where a lot of artistic people congregate. It's an original by Everett Freeman, which Harry Kurnitz will produce after Baby finishes "Key Largo" with Bogey.

Speaking of Dennis Morgan, a lot of people who had always thought of him more or less as a stellar handy man in musicals, got a jolt when it came out that Mr. M. was the big money earner of the Warner lot last year and paid the highest income tax. But he certainly should diet if he wants to keep the girls adoring him.

THERE'S NO more interesting story in history than that of Lucrezia Borgia, whose brothers poisoned those who incurred their displeasure. Lucrezia lived in Rome in the 15th century and she was very beautiful, according to the historians. Although she is sometimes mentioned as an arch-poisoner, it was really her brothers who did it at least, that's what the history books say.

Rita Hayworth

Well, Charles Vidor is planning to direct a picture based on Lucrezia's romantic life, after he finishes "Carmen" with Rita Hayworth. He would like Rita for the Lucrezia role, and it could be that Harry Cohn will give permission, for such a picture would have romance and the magnificent settings of the 15th century.

Understandable why Sam Goldwyn was so excited today. "The Bishop's Wife" was chosen as the motion picture to be shown at the command performance in England. Last year it was a British picture and this year it was decided that the honor should go to America.

Naturally, all the producers were hoping to win the prize, but the King and Queen, who pass on the movies, selected Sam's, and that's understandable, for it's a fine picture. Not only that, but it has David Niven, who has never been better, and Cary Grant as the angel is something to shout about.

Congratulations, Sam!

THE SUDDEN DEATH of Dress Designer Bobby Kallock from a heart attack has made some of the stylists speculate on whether Bobby had a feeling something was going to happen.

Each designer created a costume for a fashion show to be held on Monday. Bobby's contribution was a complete mourning outfit—black dress, black shoes, black hat and bag. His group debated whether to show it after his death, but decided he would have wanted it to be a part of the collection.

Bobby had just received the assignment to dress Myrna Loy in "Mr. Blandings Builds a Dream House," and was delighted.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Cobina Wright, Sr., who is the only Hollywood person to have received a wedding invitation from Princess Elizabeth's bridegroom, leaves Thursday. She sails the 28th on the America, three weeks in advance of the day when Princess Elizabeth becomes the bride of Lt. Philip Mountbatten.

Cobina has always kept up her friendship with Philip, who at one time courted her daughter. He's written to Cobina, Sr., through the years, and the invitation to the wedding came directly from him.

She's taking along some beautiful clothes, among them a prune colored satin and a black lace, and she'll decide when she gets there what to wear, depending on what the other guests wear.

I've been reading "Body by Van," which is extremely interesting for anyone who wants to reduce. Van is Frankie Van, former flyweight boxer, who has been at Universal for many years, exercising the stars and telling them how to keep their weight under control.

There are diets and exercises with pictures showing you how to do them. Among Frankie's clientele are Ella Raines, Ann Blyth, Yvonne de Carlo, Burt Lancaster and other stars.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Lawrence Tierney with a girl he introduced as Sara Spencer at the Seacomber's. Seems he and Vivi Stokes are through.

Paulette Goddard

Paulette Goddard was a sensation in her new Paris gown at Merle Oberon's dinner. The bodice white, the skirt a very full black velvet with padded hips, gave her the new look. Paulette, earlier in the day, went shopping in a long black skirt and hat with egrets and a diamond necklace. Now Paulette, we don't dress that way for luncheon.

Rocky (Mrs. Gary) Cooper, who was also at Merle's, said she was never so uncomfortable in her life. She wore the new style corset and had a waist so tiny you could put your two hands around it. Her pale blue silk dress was made in the latest fashion, pointed bodice and all.

Merle wore an Orry Kelly white dress that floated, it was so delicate. The dinner was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shields, Rocky Cooper's stepfather and mother. I sat next to Gary at dinner and I asked him if he really went over the waterfall in "Unconquered."

"Oh, of course," he said, "so did Paulette." He said he was glad for C. B. De Mille the picture was doing well.

Clifton Webb sported a pompadour which he'll wear as a baby sitter in "Sitting Pretty," his next picture. Joan Crawford proudly showed me how much weight she had lost—not that she needed to, but it made her waist in her black lace dress look very tiny. Virginia Zanuck, who hasn't gone in for the bustle and the padding, looked very dainty in a white and gold dress.

After dinner there was a great discussion of many things including the big show in Washington, which is being put on by the House committee on un-American activities.

I stopped by Mocambo for a minute on the way home from the photographers' ball and won, of all things, a Susi sweater in the drawing.

Ho-hum. Georgette Winsor and Harry Cushing staged a reconciliation party on account of he was able to find that new home in Beverly Hills she was holding out for.

My Boston

By Alan Frazer

HOW "BOB" BRADFORD came to the aid of a lady in distress can now be revealed . . . Gertrude Lawrence was trying-out her voice at the Opera House the other night, warming up for the broadcast of "Lady in the Dark," when zip! went her dress. Right down the side . . . Of course, nobody had a pin. But our handsome young Governor remembered the badge that had been given him at the Memorial Services for the War Dead at the Arena . . . Removing the pin from the badge, he presented it to Miss Lawrence . . . She pledged him her undying gratitude. Better than that, she pledged him her vote . . . She is now a resident of Dennis on the Cape and promises to register the first chance she gets.

CONGRESSMAN FRED A. HARTLEY, JR., of New Jersey, co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor law, is in Boston. He speaks before the Associated Industries tomorrow . . . One Greater Boston Gold Star Mother, who did not request the return of her son's body, will receive it in a few days. The Army informed her that the body could not be buried permanently in the hard coral of the Pacific atoll where her son fell. Sooner or later it would wash into the sea . . . Marialyce Swain Burrage, ex-wife of socialite Russell Burrage, Jr., was obviously ill when we saw her dancing last week at the Balinese Room, two nights before she was found unconscious in the Fenway.

SENATOR EDWARD M. ROWE of Cambridge, member of a special recess committee on education, favors establishing a medical school in the western part of the state, as part of the University of Massachusetts . . . John D. Crowley, Sr., agent of the Cambridge Board of Health, ran the precise military program at the Arena last Sunday. The long program finished only 80 seconds overtime. Crowley, past national head of the 40-and-8, is now in New York to manage that city's parade and exercises in Central Park Sunday . . . Patients of a Greater Boston doctor, who has an interest in several hospitals, will be surprised soon when the Internal Revenue people accuse him of income tax evasion.

A RESTAURANT on Court st. offers you a discount of five cents if you don't take bread, as a patriotic duty . . . And a Tremont st. store recently offered rattlesnake meat at $1.90 for a 4-oz. tin. Whether this can be eaten on Meatless Tuesday, we can't say . . . Some people may be interested to know that rattlesnakes abound in the Blue Hills reservation, and are often killed by automobiles on the roads. But their biggest enemy is the blacksnake, which is the reason some states prohibit the killing of blacksnakes . . . The squirrel that ran wild in the insurance department of the Veterans Administration at 55 Tremont st., the other day, was brought in by a clerk in the insurance service. He opened his shirt and let it go, while consulting his boss, Clarence G. Harbert.

DINERS AT THE Music Box evidently will never grow tired of firing requests at Herb Lewis, the singing troubadour, who tickles the keys like nobody's business . . . Zero Mostel, the comedian, here a short time ago with Henry Wallace's third-party show, flew in from Chicago yesterday, five days ahead of schedule, on urgent request of the Latin Quarter . . . He replaces Martha Raye, whose mother died in California . . . Censoring of Martha's show by the Boston Licensing Board emphasized the fact that night clubs do not fall under the theater "censor." Walter Milliken . . . The latter's real title is chief of the licensing division of the mayor's office . . . Milliken and his assistant, Beatrice Whelton, keep their eyes on plays, vaudeville, movies, burlesque . . . A little while ago he had to crack down on the penny arcades which were showing some pretty snappy stuff in those 10-cent "soundies," the machines in which Jimmy Roosevelt was interested.

BURLESQUE houses have vanished from the lower part of Washington st., in the near South End. The city now has only two, the Casino and the Old Howard . . . Milliken drops in on Mondays to see that the girls don't take off too much, but has to keep checking, sometimes with the help of friends . . . Biggest part of Milliken's time, and Miss Whelton's, is taken up reviewing movies . . . In this they are guided by reports from the National League of Decency, and the National Board of Review. The state police review films for Sunday showings, and the theatres are pledged to make the same deletions throughout the week . . . Foreign films cause the most trouble. The two officials insist on having word-for-word translations in addition to the English sub-titles. That's because people in the audience, who know French, sometimes get a big kick out of dialogue that didn't say a thing as far as the sub-title was concerned.

IT IS UP TO MILLIKEN and Miss Whelton to make deletions without ruining the continuity of a picture . . . Moreover they can't censor-out things that are historically true, just because it would offend some groups in the community. In this case they have to go to the library and find out what's true and what isn't . . . As for plays, the theater managers co-operate fully. Sometimes Milliken goes to New York, as he did on request of the Theater Guild to look at "The Iceman Cometh." . . . Innumerable changes were recommended, but Eugene O'Neill, who wrote the thing, wouldn't agree, so the show skipped Boston, as did his "Strange Interlude." . . . There is no censoring of books by Milliken, although he sometimes receives copies to review from people who think he's our guardian of literary morals. . . . That task now rests with the courts.

Washington Scene

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—My social secretary, Mrs. Tabitha Talcott Pratt, came in the other Thursday with egg on her chin and said she was quite put out with President Truman.

"Why—because he caught you sneaking eggs for breakfast again?" asked Miss Reid.

"How dare you insinuate I was sneaking eggs?" rasped Mrs. Pratt, dabbing a handkerchief at her fat chin to erase the telltale evidence. "I will have you know I am as patriotic as the next one."

"Which next one — Charlie Chaplin?"

"I did not come here to bandy words with you, you skinny little snip," snarled Mrs. Pratt, who detests any female weighing less than 200 pounds. "I came to tell this wretch," pointing at me, "that he ought to take President Truman to task."

I said, defensively, that if Mr. Big wanted to go to task he could get somebody else to take him, but what had he done now?

"He has dealt Washington society an underhand blow," replied Tabby. "The very idea of his canceling all White House state dinners for the coming social season!"

"But," I protested, "he says he is doing it to save food. He has decided to feed only himself and his little woman, thus saving tons of foodstuffs to send to Europe. You know how those State dinner free-loaders eat?"

"They sure do," cut in my senior naval aide, machinist's mate Michelangelo Rembrandt Kelly. "I worked as a part time waiter around those shindigs once—and you gotta watch to keep your fingers out of biting distance or they will eat them too."

MR. GROVER WHITNEY McKEISTER, the eminent legislative consultant, told my social secretary he failed to understand what she was agitated about.

"It will hamper the Washington social season," explained Tabby. "The better people look to the President to set the pace. If he entertains lavishly others will do the same, and there will be so many interesting affairs to attend."

"You mean," interrupted Miss Reid, "that you won't have to buy yourself a dinner all winter."

"I was not speaking to you," snubbed Mrs. Pratt. "Now, as I was saying, it is most inconsiderate of the President. But thank heaven, the embassies are not going to give in to any such silly fad!"

I asked Tabby what she meant. She replied that most of the foreign embassies were still giving delightful parties and planned to continue to do so.

"I have seen the list of future events," she added, "and this season's diplomatic functions are to be more brilliant and lavish than ever."

MACHINIST'S MATE KELLY was thoughtful a moment as he digested this intelligence. Then he blurted:

"But look here, Mrs. Pratt! You mean them foreigners ain't cutting out their sorries, like the president?"

"Certainly not," replied Tabby. "They mean to carry on. And the word is soirees—not sorries."

"But," persisted my naval aide, "ain't there something wrong about that?—I mean about giving these sore Hays, or whatever you call them. Ain't it kind or funny that we should cut our parties so as to send food to their people while they keep right on eating high on the hog,—spending money like drunken sailors—I mean marines?"

"Yes," interjected Mr. McKeister, "and did you ever stop to think, dear lady, where most of them are getting the money to do this fancy entertaining? No matter how it is juggled, the American taxpayers will ultimately have to lift the tab."

"That isn't the worst of it," butted in Miss Reid. "It mightn't be so hard to take if they held their orgies quietly. But they call in the society writers and boast of their lavishness. That's rubbing it in."

Mrs. Pratt snorted disdainfully, directing a double snort at Mr. McKeister, who she contends is nothing but a scoundrelly lobbyist anyway.

"No wonder we Americans are looked down upon!" she snapped. "Such utter provincialism!"

IN GLANCING at the daily food story in the paper this morning I saw something about "colliflower heads," but it proved to be no rap at our food experts. It seems James E. Colliflower has been named head of the Washington citizens' food committee.

Deb Engaged

JANE STEWART who made her debut at the only coming out party ever held in a Harvard dormitory, is engaged to John G. Young of Brookline, according to announcement by her parents, Rev. and Mrs. George Stewart of Dublin, N. H., and Boston.

Jane is a sophomore at Bennington, a graduate of Milton Academy and member of the Boston Junior League. She came out at a luncheon with Mary P. Hazard and Katharine Little last fall. The party was at Adams House dormitory, which is seldom invaded by feminine guests, let alone coming-out debs. The party was arranged by Kay's dad, a headmaster at Harvard.

Jane Stewart

Mr. Young is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Young. He graduated from Phillips Exeter in 1943 and is now at Harvard after serving three years in the 397th Infantry Regiment in Europe.

Miss Stewart's father is a former pastor of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York. On the maternal side she is a great granddaughter of the late J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston.

EVERYTHING from curtains to earrings has been collected by Tau Beta Beta of Brookline for its rummage sale tomorrow in Brookline Town Hall to benefit the club's scholarship fund that sends four girls to college each year.

Mrs. Daniel Tyler, Jr., has charge of the men's table; Mrs. Harlow Willis, curtains; Mrs. Philip Richardson and Mrs. Howard K. Thompson, ladies' clothing; Mrs. Aaron J. Lyman and Mrs. J. Minot Sheppard, children's, and Mrs. Ingram A. Fearing, shoes.

IT'S A SAFE BET the next time Women's City Club members go to the Boston Public Library they'll have a look at the beautiful bronze sculptured doors. "They are always open so visitors seldom notice the sculpture," says his daughter of the artist who executed them.

She is Mrs. Margaret Cresson, Stockbridge socialite artist and author who spoke yesterday at the club's highly enjoyable authors' luncheon. Her father was Daniel French, eminent Boston sculptor whose many works around here include the Minute Man, John Harvard statue in Harvard Yard, the General Hooker monument across from the State House and the bust of Phillips Brooks at Trinity Church. Mrs. Cresson has just written "Journey Into Fame."

The luncheon was packed with club members eager to see and hear their favorite authors and there were six of them on the program. One was Cleveland Amory, young Milton socialite and Harvard graduate, making his first speech since publication of his much talked about book, "The Proper Bostonian." His mother, Mrs. Robert Amory, was there with Mrs. Robert Amory, Jr., and their Milton neighbor, Mrs. William Brace Pratt.

Another speaker was A. J. Lyons, author of "Invitation to Boston." Much to the surprise of many, this personable young writer turned out to be feminine. She is Miss Agnes J. Lyons but her pen name, "A. J.", has fooled many readers into thinking the author was a Mister. Bill Cunningham told about writing "Pearl of Her Sex" and was introduced by none other than the Pearl herself (Mrs. C.) who was handsomely dressed in black with a sable scarf. Hamilton Gibbs and Gerald Warner Brace also spoke.

Among the many enjoying this diverting program were Mrs. Curtis Prout with Mrs. Arthur Cushing; Mrs. H. F. Morse and Mrs. J. R. Sammons who both live at Brae Burn Country Club and came with a foursome of friends; Mrs. Walter Powers, Mrs. Harold Walker, who is entertaining Mrs. Cresson during her Boston stay, Mrs. Harold W. Davie and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sumner Andrews, the former Lydia Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cunningham. Also Mrs. Harry Hayward, Mrs. Marcus Beebe, Mrs. Joel Goldthwaite, Mrs. Thomas Storrow, Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor and Mrs. Francis J. Flagg.

At Mystic Station in Everett yesterday, Boston Edison Company added 50,000 kilowatts of new electric generating capacity to its system, when the Station's third turbo-generator was placed in operation.

"Mystic No. 1," in service November 1943, helped meet the peak war loads of 1944. "Mystic No. 2," in service September 1945, helped meet the demands of early post-war conversion. "Mystic No. 3," in service October 1947, is available for a winter which may witness greater demands for electricity than ever before.

Each unit at Mystic Station is a modern 50,000-kilowatt turbo-generator, designed to operate at a high degree of fuel economy, thus helping to absorb some of the increasing costs of fuel, labor, taxes and maintenance.

"Mystic No. 3," is additional evidence of Boston Edison's confidence in the continuing growth and prosperity of Metropolitan Boston and all New England. Looking even further into the future, Boston Edison has started construction at Weymouth for the installation, in 1949, of the largest turbo-generator in New England.

A year before the start of World War II, Boston Edison had 350,000 kilowatts of generating capacity. Today it has 560,000 kilowatts. In 1949, it will have approximately 650,000 kilowatts. As Greater Boston prospers and expands, the Company will continue to increase its facilities. As it was prepared for war and for the first years of peacetime conversion, Boston Edison will be prepared in the future to meet the electrical needs of the territory which it serves.

Main Dishes Quickly

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

IT'S HARD to concentrate on cooking these unusually fine fall days. And when you want to get out of doors, it's no fun to be stewing over a hot stove or fretting about big meals. So why not rely on the ready-to-serve main course dishes that come now in cans—hearty, wholesome foods like oven-baked beans, cooked macaroni in cream sauce, spaghetti, beef and vegetables, etc.

Take spaghetti, for instance. There's a dish you can count on as an instant favorite with your family. Just as it comes from the can it's ready to go. But if you want to ring in flavor changes, it can be topped with crisped bologna chips, strips of bacon, or small meat balls. Liverwurst browned in a skillet goes well with spaghetti, and broiled onion slices make it something pretty special. It can also be capped with sautéed sizzled beef, or mixed with frankfurters or shrimp. It's companionable food, this spaghetti, that goes gregariously with almost anything that has zip enough to match it. Take these suggestions, for instance:

FRENCH FRIED EGGPLANT WITH SPAGHETTI

1 medium-sized eggplant
2 eggs 1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
flour fat
2 cans cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese

Cut eggplant into slices 1-inch thick. Peel, then cut into 1-inch cubes. Beat eggs, then add salt and pepper. Dip eggplant cubes in egg mixture, then in flour. Fry in deep fat until tender and golden brown. Then drain on paper. Heat spaghetti. Top and surround spaghetti with eggplant cubes. This is excellent for a meatless day menu.

CASSEROLE OF BEEF AND SPAGHETTI

½ oz. dried beef
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 cans cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese
Grated cheese

Fry beef in butter or margarine until crisp. Place in individual casseroles between two layers of spaghetti. Top with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 20 minutes.

Note: Cooked macaroni may be substituted for the spaghetti.

SUPPER CASSEROLES

1 medium can baked beans
1 cup chopped cold frankfurters
4 or 5 slices bacon
Tomato ketchup

Place a layer of beans in a casserole and cover with a layer of meat. Repeat until you have three layers of beans and two layers of meat. Over top layer of beans pour a generous amount of ketchup, and lay strips of bacon over top of ketchup. Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) for about 30 minutes or until beans and meat are heated through and the bacon is a golden brown. Makes 4 servings.

BAKED GREEN PEPPERS STUFFED WITH BAKED BEANS

½ large green peppers
1 medium can baked beans
1 cup buttered bread crumbs

Wash green peppers, cut in halves lengthwise and remove the seeds. Place in boiling water and allow to stand for 5 minutes to remove sting from the peppers. Fill with beans, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs, place in a deep baking dish, add ¼ cup water, and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) until peppers are tender and the crumbs brown. Makes 4 servings.

A can of delicious beef and vegetables may be heated in jig time. With hot rolls, a green salad, a fruit dessert, cookies or cake, and coffee, you can have a very substantial and appetizing meal.

PICTURED is one of the season's smartest ways to look after five . . . from the cocktail hour through theater time. The cummerbund of this billowing black taffeta skirt by Ceil Chapman makes a perfect setting for a glittering diamond-studded pin, if you have one. However, the delicate pink sheer blouse, with bodice and sleeves of minute pleats and a yoke inset of black Chantilly lace, gives newness to the ensemble . . . especially when it is topped by Mary Goodfellow's pink lame turban with black aigrettes. Revives Facial Loveliness

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

KIDDING is a national pastime . . . but some women carry it too far. When the mirror in its own merciless way . . . tells us that the complexion is sallow and dull and as faded as the season's last leaf . . . there's neither rhyme nor reason in trying to kid ourselves into thinking it is as lustrous as a pearl and as radiant as a full moon.

There's nothing intangible about a sick-looking complexion. It should be . . . and it is . . . as obvious as a pimple on the chin . . . or blackheads around the nose . . . or enlarged pores dotting the facial expanse like so many polka dots on a rampage. Strangely enough . . . all of these complexion undesirable are closely associated . . . and very often one begets the other.

So let's apply that "honesty is the best policy" axiom to the mirrored reflection if we ever hope to achieve . . . as one of the attributes of a lovely skin . . . the clear radiant look of youth. And let's be ever mindful that every skin, occasionally, needs extra surface stimulation to help keep that youthful radiance

When the skin is sallow, dull or sluggish . . . stimulation is needed more frequently. In cases of blackheads or enlarged pores . . . three times a week is not too much. But every type of skin . . . with the exception of the one in which there is an indication of broken veins . . . should have a corrective preparation incorporated into the basic routine once to three times a week temporarily to stimulate surface circulation.

SIMPLE PROCESS

The amount of facial glow that is whipped up by this cosmetic corrective is indication, very often, as to the condition of the skin. The skin in an unhealthy condition will not respond as quickly or actively . . . but over a period of time the accumulative goodness will return the skin to some degree of normalcy.

This facial glow inducer . . . dark-brownish in color . . . looks like molasses medicinally treated. Of course, it isn't . . . but its ingredients are such that they penetrate the outer layer to do beauty-good from within. Here is how it is used:

Cleanse the face and neck thoroughly and remove cream with tissue. Re-apply a second application of cleanser

For the name of this corrective "facial glow" complexion stimulant, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THERE'S no denying the camera's honesty . . . and its pictured handiwork. It tells all about the complexion and a girl's beauty or lack of it. And from this photo of Warner star Audrey Totter . . . it may be gathered that this celluloid cutie has a fresh-looking, smooth and clear facial expanse . . . that doesn't need constant retouching.

Avoid Being Clinging Vine

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am 15 and very much in love with a fellow 16. Maybe it is just "puppy love," but it doesn't seem like it. This fellow means a lot to me and at one time he was crazy about me. He asked me out a couple of times and I accepted.

Lately he hasn't paid as much attention to me as he used to. I asked one of his friends to find out if he still liked me and he told me he does still like me but not as much as he used to. I see this fellow every day and I always want to be around him. My girl friend said I shouldn't do this but should try to avoid him. I have tried, but it doesn't work, and anyway I can't stay away. Do you think there is any way I can get him to like me as he used to?

"HOPEFUL"

Dear "Hopeful":

Don't make a clinging vine of yourself. No boy likes a girl who does that. Have the gumtion to stand on your own feet and act as if you were a girl who didn't need to depend on one boy for her happiness. You're never going to get any chap back by letting him think he is your whole world. Instead, let him see that you can have a lot of fun without him and he may decide he is missing something when he is not with you.

A New Line on You

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

BEING well-dressed implies more than the simple fact of wearing a beautiful costume. It means wearing just the right dress for the right occasion, a dress that matches the mood of the party as the overture matches the mood of the play.

Clothes for cocktail parties are light and lovely in mood, reflecting the sparkling atmosphere of champagne, witty chatter, flowers and music. They are cut to reveal the figure. Materials are rich and luxurious. Decoration, this season, is lavish. Much embroidery is being used. There are lots of selftrim: patterned appliques, tiny tucking, scalloping, pleating and fancy stitching. Lace laid over contrasting color to show its lovely pattern is one of the newest and most effective trims.

Trigere designed the dress sketched today. It is made of black crepe with a flared skirt. Three tiers of black French lace over flesh net grace the low shoulder line. Black straps cross the neck and tie above the lace in a bow.

Thank-You Notes Important

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I have just returned from a business trip, and while I was in the town where a very close friend of mine lives, a friend of hers (a stranger to me) invited me to come with her to lunch. It was a charming occasion, and of course I thanked the hostess most enthusiastically as we said good-by. Now do you think it is necessary for me to write her a thank-you note also? THEODORA.

Yes, I do think that you should write the nicest note of thanks you can possibly write to this kind hostess who made such a special gesture of hospitality to you, a stranger. As a matter of fact, it would have been mannerly of you to have written her a thank-you note before you left her town.

Disney Cartoon at Memorial Full of Laughs

In the happy Disney groove is "Fun and Fancy Free," newest story-cartoon from the master of laughter and whimsy, which is now unreeling a bright and Technicolorful show for children of all ages at Keith Memorial.

Into the current feature-length cartoon are woven two well-known fables, "Jack and the Beanstalk" and Sinclair Lewis' foolery about a little circus bear named Bongo which derives from Heinrich Heine.

Gay if not inspired or particularly novel, the accent is rather on the first half than the latter half of the title, "Fun and Fancy Free."

It opens with thimble-sized Jiminy Cricket chirping the title-song and then takes up the story of Bongo, a poor, battered, little circus-bear who finally escapes a cruel master. But life in the wide, free forest is not all his day-dreams led him to believe. When night closes in, the deep sable depths of the forest resound with the ear-shattering noises of wild life and nearly frighten small Bongo out of his bearskin.

But into his life comes a bewitching she-bear. Both are transported into a blissful state where cupids atomize pink clouds out of flitguns until a towering brute rival dashes them to earth. But this a fable and, of course, the big, bad bear has his comeuppence and Bongo and Lulubelle have a happy-ever-after future.

Jumping Jiminy, serving as impresario, takes over with his "Happy-Go-Lucky Fellow" (chirped by Cliff Edwards), introduces the second episode. In this Disney version the "Beanstalk" tale becomes "Mickey and the Beanstalk," with Edgar Bergen narrating the story to Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd and Luana Patten, with Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Goofy as the characters who climb the great beanstalk to rescue a wee musical maiden in distress. Billy Gilbert's voice is heard as the beanstalk giant and when he finally materializes to hear the end of the story Bergen faints from fright.

'Trial Honeymoon' Found Lacking at the Plymouth

By PEGGY DOYLE

It is a little early in the season for hard-and-fast decisions but your play-handicapper, who stayed through the mickey-finish of last night's opening at the Plymouth, urges "Trial Honeymoon" as a strong contender for the year's booby-prize award.

In a season that has discovered Broadway angels to be as rare as the hen's dentures of platitude, it is merely astounding that a script so totalling lacking in craftsmanship comedy and taste should find itself in production.

Running to cliches and corn, "Trial Honeymoon" takes the customers through the hideously long bridal night of an allegedly just-married young couple. No haunted house ever echoed to more repetitious door-rapping, but through all the knuckle-making din and assorted chitchat the pseudo-bridegroom kept on snoring.

A pretty picture, yes? And even without the inclusion of the gabby, brassy sergeant, who with doubtful chivalry insists on taping the prescribed walnut-shell to the snorer's spine in the interest of persuading him to turn over.

Other visitors to the semi-demi bridal chamber are the "bride's" best friend and business partner, who has a mania for wry insults; the "bridegroom's" best friend, a mountain of strength and nobility who subconsciously covets his best friend's best girl, the g. h. sergeant and the unmarried groom's over-upholstered sister.

As the play went on and on last night, this sister-sitter was repeatedly reminded of Sophie Tucker's "Didn't Your Mother Teach You Nothin'?" lyrics. The insults flew fast and furiously but strangely the insults invariably registered blandness and deafness. It was all very curious and very little fun.

Eileen Hackart, who appeared opposite Bert Lahr in the Cambridge tryout of the Broadway success, "Burlesque," and more recently in the short-lived "The Stars Weep," plays the best friend with a competency that shows up the professional slipsy-slapsy of the other cast members.

Harry Rosen, former Hollywood casting agent at whose Blauvelt (N. Y.) summer theater Conrad S. Smith's new comedy was tried out the past summer, produced "Trial Honeymoon," which never should have left Blauvelt on account of the honeymoon is over in show business.

nist Party's central executive committee. He will quote from Lawson's remarks at the meeting.

Other witnesses scheduled for call today include Oliver Carlson, student of Communist infiltration in many fields; Richard MacAuley and Fred Niblo, Jr., from the film colony; and Ayn Rand, Russian-born author of the best-seller "The Fountainhead," who has become a bitter critic of the slave-state set up by Stalin.

A literary agent "sent to Hollywood by Communist Party headquarters in New York" obtained confidential information on America's secret supersonic plane from an Army test pilot, John Charles Moffitt, screen writer and motion picture critic, testified yesterday before the committee.

The dramatic charge of Communist espionage operating in every branch of the American [illegible] was the highlight of the committee's hearing so far.

The frightening panorama of favored marketing of screen scripts, plays, books and magazine articles written by those who passed the Communist Party line test was presented by Moffitt.

Adolphe Menjou, Hollywood's best-dressed male star, emphatically detailed in his testimony the aim of Moscow and its American tools to gain control of the motion picture industry here as a medium of propaganda to overthrow the American government.

Menjou labeled Stalin as "like Mr. Al Capone—he commits murders and kills the witnesses.

"I'm not afraid of Communism in America if it is out in the open," he testified. "The American people will reject Communism. I'd like to see it outlawed."

Robert Hughes, noted author and screen writer, declared the motion picture producers should "clean out the Communists from the industry instead of supporting them."

Moffitt named John Weber, head of the literary department of the William Morris Agency, which handles a host of well-known stars and writers, as obtaining the confidential data on the Army's supersonic plane.

Moffitt testified that Weber got in touch with "Slick" Goodlin, an Army test pilot working on development of supersonic planes.

"Weber got to the boy and said he should have a wonderful story to sell the magazines," said Moffitt.

"The boy said he would have to have the material passed on by Army authorities for security reasons.

"Weber said to give him a sample of the stuff and they would take up the security aspect later.

"Weber had Goodlin come to Hollywood. The boy was foolish enough to provide the samples and his draft contained much supersonic information.

"The FBI took the whole matter up. Goodlin was dismissed."

you have Democracy,'" sneered a Bavarian, a retired professor of economy at Munich University. "You say 'Now you are free to govern yourselves and rule by majority like we do in the United States.' But you reserve the right to recognize only Bavarian parties. You refuse to accept the Monarchists, who have a plurality. What kind of Democracy is it which ignores the majority?"

Whether these stubborn farm folk want their king back, is a question. But there are six separate parties in this Bavarian political chop suey: the powerful Christian Socialist Union, Social-Democrats, Communists, Free-Germany party, Economic Reconstruction Party and the recently formed Bayernpartie (said to be a monarchist blind, and not yet aproved by MG). Their platforms are a mess of ambiguity.

But Military Government takes the stubborn be-damned-to-you attitude that Bavaria and all U. S. occupied Germany shall be Democratic if it has to administer the dose like a veterinary gives a horse a drench. As Lt. William J. Moran, the Berchtesgaden deputy MG control officer, told me today, while we sat in his headquarters in the old Vittelsbach palace:

"Our policy is to supervise German home rule without interference or advice. The German executives are encouraged to make their own decisions and accept entire responsibility for the functions of government according to the standard of American democracy. MG field officials like myself have no authority to give any orders to the German officials. We can only supervise."

GERMAN COP PERPLEXED

It made a pretty but mystifying formula, which neither the Germans nor many Americans clearly understand — where the thin wavering line of control separates from supervision. For example, during a recent "train check" at the border, where Constabulary sergeants screened the passengers with German police, the Germans did the examining and often turned for decisions to the troopers. "Go ahead," the sergeant would say. "What'r yuh gonna do? But do something! Arrest 'em or let 'em go!" So the German cop would flounder perplexedly, obviously asking himself "What do the Americans want?" — trying to please both parties.

Copyright, 1947, King Features Synd., Inc.

"Now who do you suppose he learned THAT from?!"

Our occupation force is gradually "bleeding away." Already a large number of MG officers have been sent home. The Constabulary has become a garrison force like firemen in station houses waiting for an alarm. Troopers still patrol interior areas and borders thinly, more as a gesture than as a force—a kind of nursemaid to enforcement.

Thirty months after the last gun was fired and Germany became a conquered nation, Americans have no more civil rights than the vanquished natives. Germans can sue them in MG courts. They submit to many cases of German arrogance rather than risk crossing blades with MG zealots. And gradually our occupation is dwindling away to a point where only the higher administrative echelons and a skeleton soldier force will be left — a "token" form of occupation, while on the north and east, Russia and its satellite nations are mobilized in full strength. No wonder the Germans are confused by what they call a "paper war."

Older, more seasoned heads among the many U. S. officials I have quizzed since arriving here, agree that Americans have seriously "lost face" due to three major factors: (1) our international shilly-shallying with Russia, (2) the low quality of our administrative officials, (3) the green, generally inferior type of our occupation troops. Constabulary officers have told me repeatedly and sadly, "Seventy-five per cent of our troubles are our own soldiery. We spend most of our time getting our men out of trouble." It's like replacing the mighty giant that America was during the combat phase of the war, with a feeble midget.

MISFITS IN CONTROL

"We've put a civilized mediocrity in charge," said one MG official recently. "We find some former shoe clerk whose only qualification for the job is political privilege, put in charge of a German metropolitan center. Or a graduate signal corps corporal masquerading as a communications expert. Or some ex-straw boss, as a railroad consultant. The Germans listen to these four-flushers and imagine they represent our national brains. And yet, mixed with these mediocrities is a sound core of sincere MG officials who want to do an honest job, but find themselves too often out-ranked by some political faker, in or out of uniform, who is making a fat living from bluster."

The above is an ugly indictment but a fair consensus drawn from all branches of our occupation service. And it is only an outline.

"Much of the stuff American publications print about the occupation," said a silver-haired officer lately, "is so much sentimental drip, or imaginative hurrah. The American people should be told the stark, naked truth. And the reason they aren't is because only a few correspondents are willing to get off their hams in the big city centers and dig out the facts in the field—where the truth lies."

So our democratic stew is on the fire and simmering gently to a boil. The connection is being seasoned with confusion and garnished with disillusionment. In the end the American people may have to swallow and digest their own mess again. I suspect when the Occupation brass in Frankfurt reads this I shall be invited to pack my keester, and take the next plane for home.

Red Warmonger Charges Aired

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 22 (AP) —The United Nations turned today to Russia's "warmonger" charges with prospects of a series of verbal barrages outstripping anything heard in the two-year history of the peace agency.

The Soviet demand that all governments prohibit "warmongering," the key issue of the Russian program in the 1947 general assembly, is at the debating stage in the 57-nation political committee with Dep. Foreign Minister Vishinsky ready to fire the opening blast.

The issue came up on the heels of a thumping defeat for Russia in the full assembly, which voted 40 to 6 in plenary session yesterday to set up a watchdog commission in the Balkans as proposed by the United States.

Divides Engines Bid Among 3

In order to get speedier delivery, a $525,000 contract for new fire engines for Boston has been divided among three bidders, instead of being awarded to the lowest, it was announced by Acting Mayor John B. Hynes.

The acting mayor also announced he plans to further expand the department by purchase of 12 additional engines, to cost $200,000 more. He reported the purchases would be made this year, instead of next, to avoid possible higher prices.

IDENTITY ERROR

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—A dentist from near Middletown, Md., had visions of motorcycle police when the siren began to scream, but a second later he realized the noise came from the car he was driving.

It took another second to figure out the vehicle was not his own. Driving back to a business establishment he had just left, he found his own car still parked. The car with the siren belonged to W. Lee Elgin, state commissioner of motor vehicles.

Boxing Wrong By Keeping Ban On Graziano

By JACK CONWAY

THE PUBLIC IS with Rocky Graziano in his fights against the New York Athletic Commission and National Boxing Ass'n. Rocky was set down indefinitely in New York for failing to reveal a bribe offer which he did not accept, while his trouble with the National Boxing Ass'n resulted when Illinois suspended him for having received a dishonorable discharge from the Army.

The feeling of Jawn Public towards Graziano was shown at Bridgeport when the middleweight champion received an ovation when introduced at a boxing show. Fight crowds are that way. They are more interested in what a boxer is able to do under ring fire than they are in what happened in his past life, especially if he were punished for his offenses.

Graziano served his Army sentence, and once he paid his debt to Uncle Sam there was no reason why a Boxing commission should assume a holier than thou attitude and set him down.

Boxing is one of those sports that always does not attract the best people in society. Bill McGeehan used to call boxing modified murder, and there was much truth to what he said. The people who go to boxing shows like to let their hair down and they are never disappointed when a wide open puncher like Graziano furnishes a little blood shed.

It is ridiculous for the New York Athletic Commission to keep Graziano from boxing in his native state, while it admits it has been unable to tie big shot racketeers in with the management of boxers. The racketeers keep out of the commission by not applying for licenses and by using front men. The intellectual members of the New York commission headed by Eddie Eagan, who once studied at dear old Oxford, have strong suspicions of what is going on but they have been unable to prove the charges.

There were thousands of young men who were disgraced by receiving dishonorable discharges from the Army and Navy. Many of them served prison sentences before being released.

It is not fair to penalize a man in other walks of life because he committed service infractions for which he was punished.

Graziano's dishonorable discharge from the Army was not brought out until after he helped sell out the Chicago Stadium as he won the middleweight championship from Tony Zale. It is unreasonable to believe the facts were unknown before the bout.

Ray Robinson in Service Difficulties

RAY (SUGAR) ROBINSON, middleweight champion, came out of the service under conditions that caused him to wish to avoid bad publicity. He immediately signed to appear at shows for war veterans. In this way he helped raise close to $75,000. He is still permitted to box anywhere he wishes, while Graziano is banned.

Robinson's story has not been carried by most newspapers, and in view of the fact the Army made its own terms on the champion's discharge there is no reason why Sugar should be persecuted for the remainder of his life.

It is unfair for members of athletic bodies, who in most cases restricted their own war efforts to making speeches during war bond drives, to set themselves up as judges of the actions of service men during the war. Many youngsters committed infractions of rules under the mental strain of war that they would not do under normal conditions.

The athletic commissions could do more for boxing if they cleaned their own houses by barring racketeers from the sport. Meanwhile, let the solons stop prying into the records of service men. If they must do so, treat all boxers alike.

Thrills of Starting Gate at Foxboro

THIS WRITER received a close-up of the action of the starting gate for the trotters at Foxboro. In the company of Paul Bowser, we got into the auto that controls the gate. Harvey Hartman, one of the best starters in the country, was in charge of the gate.

Harvey cautioned us to have a good grip on one of the sides of the auto as the field approached the gate.

"The horses come up on the outside of the track in a perfect line behind the lead horse," said Harvey. "Here they are now. The horses will then turn and in line move to the inside of the track. At a word from me they will turn, and then we shall be on our way."

There are wings extending on each side of the auto and no horse can pass beyond them. Once the field was in position, Harvey gave the word and we were on our way. The auto has a driver, Eddie Keller, Jr., but the speed of the car is controled by Hartman. Once the horses were well on their way, the starting gate is pulled over to the outside of the track and the trotters continue their merry battle for positions.

The trip in the starting gate was one of the best sports thrills this writer has experienced. As one looks back at the field, he sees fine standard bred horses straining every muscle in their bodies, while drivers are busy jockeying for positions.

"One has to be sure the starting gate is in perfect condition, and that the tank is well filled with gas. If for any reason the auto should stall just after the start, there would be serious trouble."

Dodgers Snubbed; Yanks Place Only One on All-Stars

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Only one member of the world champion Yankees and not one of the National League pennant-winning Brooklyn Dodgers made the 1947 major league All-Star team of the Associated Press picked by 235 baseball writers throughout the nation.

The Giants, Cleveland and Braves, none of whom finished higher than third, each placed two men on the team which showed a National League complexion, with six representatives from the senior circuit as compared to four from the American. Neither the Cardinals nor Detroit, runners-up in their respective leagues, failed to place a man.

The Giants were represented by Johnny Mize at first base and Walker Cooper behind the plate. The Indians donated their fine keystone combination of shortstop Lou Boudreau and second baseman Joe Gordon. The Braves placed third baseman Bob Elliott and lefthanded pitcher Warren Spahn.

Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, Ted Williams of the Red Sox and Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh made up the outfield while Ewel Blackwell of Cincinnati won top honors among the righthanded pitchers.

No player was a unanimous choice. Williams, who led the American League in about every noteworthy batting department, drew the most support from the scribes, polling 209 out of a possible 233 votes. DiMaggio was close behind with 207 votes. Mize was third with 189 votes. He was followed by Boudreau, 177; Blackwell, 158; Cooper, 141; Kiner, 137; Spahn, 115; Gordon, 113; and Elliott, 99.

The selections:

Outfield—Ted Williams, Red Sox; Joe DiMaggio, Yankees; Ralph Kiner, Pirates.

First base—Johnny Mize, Giants.

Second base—Joe Gordon, Indians.

Third base—Bob Elliott, Braves.

Shortstop—Lou Boudreau, Indians.

Catcher—Walker Cooper, Giants.

Pitchers—Blackwell, Reds (righthander), and Warren Spahn (lefthander), Braves.

There were at least seven players named for each position with the closest race at third base where Elliott beat out George Kell of the Tigers by 29 votes.

Mize's closest competitor at first was Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers who polled 33 votes.

Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox, '46 All-Star second baseman, was runner-up to Gordon this year with 48 votes. He was followed by George Stirnweiss of the Yankees and Ed Stanky of the Dodgers, the rival World Series second sackers.

Johnny Pesky of the Red Sox, who teamed up with Doerr last year to form the All-Star team's keystone combination, got only 17 votes for shortstop to wind up a poor second to Boudreau.

Harry Walker of the Phils, the majors' champion batter, showed strong support, finishing fourth among the outfielders. He was followed by Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals, a first stringer last year, Tommy Henrich of the Yankees, Dixie Walker of the Dodgers and Will Marshall of the Giants.

Among the pitchers, righthander Bob Feller of the Indians and Joe Page of the Yankees, finished behind Blackwell and Spahn. Hal Newhouser of the Tigers, who with Feller comprised the pitching staff of the '46 team, finished a poor fifth with only 21 votes. He was followed by Harry Brecheen of the Cards, Frank Shea, freshman ace of the Yankees, and Johnny Sain of the Braves.

Bruins Set For Canucks

Coach Dick Irvin, the "Silver Fox" and his Flying Frenchmen from Montreal arrived in town this morning to tackle the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden.

Over the years, the Canucks probably have made less changes in personnel than any club in the NHL. During the playoffs last spring when the Maple Leafs lifted the Stanley Cup from Les Canadiens, the powers that be in Montreal came to the realization that the team needed some young blood.

So, Coach Irvin reached down and plucked no less than five players from the Montreal Royals, which is a Canadiens' farm team. And with one exception, Tod Campeau, the ex-Royals made this trip.

Doug Harvey will see service on the Canucks' defense today, while 'Rip" Riopelle, "Busher" Curry and Jacques Locas will be forward line replacements.

Coach Irvin didn't part company with his first string sextet Elmer Lach will center for

But, he's coming along all right and probably will be as rough as he ever was for the Bruins to beat.

The Bruins have held two practice sessions at the Boston Skating Club, since they beat Rangers in the opening game of the season last Sunday night. The squad is in good physical condition and would appreciate getting off to a good start against the Flying Frenchmen.

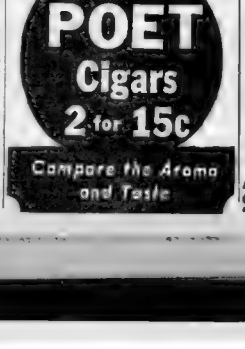
WILLIAMS' ACE FIT AGAIN

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 22 (AP)—Bud Wilson, Williams' triple-threat backfield star, appears to have shaken off his injuries. He reported for yesterday's workout and probably will be a starter against Trinity this weekend.

BARNES BOLSTERS JEFFS

AMHERST, Oct. 22 (AP) - Amherst's line for the crucial Wesleyan game, opening clash in the "Little Three" series, has been strengthened by the return of guard By Barnes, who has been out with a chest injury.



Crowley Ill, Pool Takes Rocket Job

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (INS)—The Herald-American said today that "Sleepy Jim" Crowley had relinquished the job as head coach of the hapless Chicago Rockets of the All-America Football Conference to his assistant, Hampton Pool.

Pool, a former Chicago Bear end, handled the team which made a creditable showing last Sunday in losing to the powerful Cleveland Browns.

Crowley, who has been ill for several weeks, reportedly relinquished the job with the option that he might want to return to coaching position at a later date.

Attendance at the Rocket games has dropped to an embarrassingly low figure, as the Chicago team lost eight straight games.

The Herald-American disclosed that with the advent of Pool as coach came a new program of stern discipline. One player was reportedly fined for missing a key block with a lackadaisical effort, and then the levy against him increased when he protested.

Pool also reportedly has instituted twice weekly examinations on assignments. A wrong answer costs $10.

The Rockets meet the New York Yankees in Chicago Friday night.

Hayes, Bell Head Pure Fight Card

Welterweights Bobby Hayes, South End, and Billy Bell, U. S. Navy, will be heading the list of amateur boxers who will be competing in the weekly fight card to be staged tonight at Mechanics Building by the South End A. C.

Other 147-pounders entered will be Ed Grabowski, Roxbury, and Leroy Chapman, Haverhill.

In other divisions, outstanding entries list heavyweights bob Gerard, Lynn; Vic Sidlaskas, Fitchburg, and Lou Thresher, North End; middleweights I. B. Butler, Roxbury; Fred Ruffin, U. S. Navy; Syd Cox, Cambridge, and Joe Daley, Cambridge; featherweights Henry Miller, South Boston, and Jerry Lee, Cambridge.

Stanky Happy With Dodgers

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 22 (AP) - Little Eddie Stanky says he'd like nothing better than to spend his next four or five years playing second base for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Back home for a busy winter as radio sportscaster, after dinner speaker and baseball school operator, the fiery second sacker says he loves those Brooklyn fans.

Various rumors have had it that Stanky would spend 1948 as manager of the Dodgers, as manager of a Dodger farm club and as second baseman for another major league club with Jackie Robinson taking over his present post.

"I have four or five years left as a player and I'd certainly like to spend them playing second base for the Dodgers," he said yesterday.

"I've made so many friends up there, and the fans like me. I'm not anticipating a trade to another major loop outfit or even going as a manager to the minors."

Feller's All-Stars Move to Mexico

VENTURA, Cal., Oct. 22 (AP) - Bob Feller's barn-storming major league all-star baseball team ended its domestic tour and head for Mexico City by chartered airplane today.

Since Oct. 8 the group led by the Cleveland Indians ace pitcher has played 24 exhibition games, using a plane for most of the city-to-city hops.

Feller ordered his quad up at dawn today for an early morning start. He said they'd fly to Monterey, Mexico, then decide whether to remain there overnight or go to Mexico City late today.

Gymnasts Stress Defense Against Yale's Air Attack

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 22 (AP) —Coach Ossie Solom continues to stress pass defense as he primes his Springfield team for this week's visit to the Yale Bowl.

Many new gymnast reserves were uncovered in last week's New Hampshire setback and Solem is banking on passer Ed Stoeckel and punter Bill Friberg to make commendable showings against the powerful Elis.

RICKEY IN MOVIE

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22 (AP) —The cast for a proposed movie starring Jackie Robinson, first Negro major league ballplayer, now includes Branch Rickey, Boss of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the producers say.

Robinson played a lot of first base for the Dodgers, including the World Series. The title of "Brooklyn, U. S. A." was selected for the film, based largely on Robinson's life story.

Villanova Insists B. C. Underrated

By FRED HOEY

The Villanova Wildcats from Philadelphia, who battle the Boston College Eagles at Braves Field Friday night, play hard, smashing and rugged football but not the rough and dirty type as fans might have been led to believe after the reports of Monday's local football luncheon. This is on the word of Jim Haughton, advance tub-thumper for the Wildcats, who made the rounds of the local papers last night.

JOHN SANDUSKY
Villanova's Biggest Player

Certainly no complaints against the Villanova tactics were registered by Detroit University after the latter succumbed, 4-12, to the Wildcats last Sunday.

The Wildcats were out to win and their coach, Jordan Olivar, who succeeded "Clipper" Smith, present Boston Yanks mentor, is not one who countenances that type of game. The Wildcats appreciate that B. C. plays hard and rugged football. The Eagles, like their impending foe, go all out to win but strictly within the playing code.

Haughton's visit revealed one most significant fact. He says that Olivar insists that B. C. has the most underrated college team in the country. Olivar says any team with such a line and a wealth of backs, together with its vaunted offensive power, is not to be discounted by any foe.

The close 14-12 Villanova win over Detroit took its toll. This took the form of severe bruising rather than any individual cases of breaks, dislocations, etc. The Wildcats have had little time to rest their weary bones after the rugged Detroit battle. Now they are due in town tomorrow to prepare for their big test with Eagles.

The Wildcats have had a varied season. They dropped a game to West Point 13-0 when two fumbles inside the Army's 20-yard line set up the two scores for Red Blaik's team. Against Holy Cross, the Wildcats came down to earth with a 13-6 win. Then followed the win over Detroit.

Local interest centers in the appearance of Bay State boys in the Villanova lineup. Ralph Pasquariello of Everett, weighing a rugged 222, is the big fullback who catches the fancy of the experts Nate Finklestein of Chelsea, the 190 pound end who made the Greater Boston All-Scholastic team in 1944, is stepping high for the Main Liners. Then Villanova has Tom McCarthy, a 180 fullback from Indian Orchard, who played his early football with Springfield Catholic High.

The Wildcats have a blue-ribbon performer in Joe Rogers the halfback from Philly Catholic High. Joe led the Eastern ground gainers last season with a total yardage gained of 620 in 90 rushes. The B. C. ecent will be Joe's first game of the season after a recent illness.

If the Wildcats can shake off the weary effect of the Detroit game in which they faced a team that outweighed them 20 pounds to the man, local fans are going to see a real battle between two teams.

Leahy Backs Bingham To Stamp Out Clipping

By FRANK LEAHY
Head Coach at Notre Dame

Random thoughts of a coach toying with blackboard and chalk and trying to figure out why those sure-fire plays in theory have a way of back-firing on Saturday afternoons.

College football faces serious problems. Something must be done—and quickly—to halt the rise in clipping injuries. We heartily agree with William J. Bingham, national chairman of the football rules committee, that football officials help stamp out this menace by calling clipping penalties more often.

In the past, the penalty for clipping was 25 yards. Because it was so severe officials were reluctant to put the penalty into effect except under drastic circumstances. Some players seem to follow the theory that, like pilfering watermelons, clipping is harmless, if you don't get caught.

Clipping is a serious and dangerous offense.

No football victory is worth injury to youth. Furthermore, if a serious offense like clipping is permitted to get out of hand then the whole structure of fair play faces collapse. Football is a game to be played hard and for keeps—but also fairly. Otherwise it becomes the spawning ground for unfair tactics that might lead to mob-like violence on the gridiron.

There is no place in American life for such tactics, has never been and will never be if this country is to remain the great nation it is today.

An intrinsic decency, born of fair athletic competition and good training at home, made our GIs stand out as inspiring symbols of fairness during the war. Trained as vicious killers and killers to the end when in battle, they became fair captors once the enemy was disarmed and helpless.

That's what we were fighting for—a fair break for the helpless of the world. And that's the way football should be played if it is to remain the great game it is today.

Even more alarming to us was the inexcusable outbursts of fist fighting in the stands and bottle throwing during the Texas-Oklahoma game.

Getting to more pleasant subjects, we agree with a story in a New York paper that Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd may prove to be the coach of the year. Certainly Dodd has done a superlative job. His team was considered rather a weak sister in power-laden Dixieland when the season started.

Now it ranks with the best, judged on the basis of speed, brains or brawn; with Dodd supplying a fair share of the gray matter.

However, in searching for the coach of the year we are sure the sports writers will not overlook such men as Lynn Waldorf of California; Red Sanders of Vanderbilt; Blair Cherry of Texas; Howie O'Dell of Yale; Fritz Crisler of Michigan; Red Blaik of Army, and other names too numerous to mention.

May the better man win, as Gene Tunney would say.

N. U. Promotes 2 Reserves

Two reserves who have sparked Northeastern in the last two games may become starters against Tufts Saturday at Tufts Oval. Andy Coravos of Lowell has been nominated to first-string end for defense duty, and John Curley of Mattapan already has the inside track for the right halfback spot.

Coravos will be replaced on offense by Frank Mondano of Chelsea, unless regular George Keith of Brookline returns to good physical condition. Keith, a well-poised player, is the smallest of the three, but does a good job for his size.

Curley is the 175-pound potent booter taking over for the injured Bob McIntyre. Last Saturday Curley's punts helped the defensive Huskies out of many scrapes.

Last year he was a third-string guard, but borrowed a football this summer from Coach Johnny Grinnell and practiced kicking for three months. By fall he had become one of the squad's best booters.

Grinnell said this morning: "Curley has improved so rapidly that I think he deserves a starting chance. Next to McIntyre, he's the best kicker we have. He runs harder every day, and his defensive work is adequate.

The rest of the starting backfield is still doubtful. Halfback George Lucas came to practice yesterday, but didn't dress because of his rib fracture from the Bates game last week. If he cannot play Saturday, Jim Douglas can fill in with Guido Barbieri as reserve.

3 SHIFTS AT DEVENS

FORT DEVENS, Oct. 22 (AP)—Coach Bob Davis has made three backfield changes for Devens College's clash with Lowell Textile on Friday night. Stan Kelley has been shifted from quarterback to right half, Bill Gallagher to fullback, and Fran Nagle to quarterback.

Whitey Fuller 'Tonic' for McLaughry

By BILL GRIMES

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 22—Since last Monday, when they began to drive the Big Green for the Harvard game, "Tuss" McLaughry and his assistant coaches have had too many serious problems confronting them to talk about anything not pertinent to Saturday's game in the Stadium.

They meet every morning around 9 o'clock and remain in session until lunch time. They are on the practice field until after dark every afternoon and convene every evening in their quarters at the Davis Field House.

Robert "Whitey" Fuller, Dartmouth's "Tub-Thumper" returned from Boston yesterday and dropped in at a press meeting. He's a smart operator and has been around long enough to recognize signs of the "old pressure" getting a coach down. In his book that's the time to change the topic of conversation.

"Say, 'Tuss,' while I was in Boston I discovered that I pulled one of those things in our roster book," broke in "Whitey." "I gave Lou Young, Sr., a great buildup. I wrote, erroniously, that he attained a fame in the Dartmouth family unequalled by any other father of Dartmouth sons' by Sending Lou, Jr., John and Stu up here.

"It seems that back in the dark ages," continued "Whitey," "that varsity football letters were awarded to three Bankart brothers. I checked and found that my informant was right. So, the first time any of you fellows catch me in Allen's or the Wigwam, I'll buy.

That slight deviation from Harvard was a fine tonic for "Tuss" McLaughry and realizing that he had accomplished his objective, "Whitey" departed.

Lou Young, Sr., who captained the University of Pennsylvania varsity football team in 1913 and later was head coach for seven years, did make three valuable contributions to Dartmouth football. His oldest son, Lou, Jr., was a first string varsity guard for three seasons and captained the Big Green his senior year.

On Saturday, when the Indians of the North take the field against Harvard there'll be a Young at each of the guard slots, Jack and Stu, both of whom are letter men.

As "Whitey" Fuller stated you must go back a long long time to arrive at the Bankart era.

Norman Bankart was the first of the three brothers to enroll at Dartmouth. He entered with the class of 1906. He was a first string tackle his junior year.

The second Bankart to trek up the hill from the Hanover-Norwich station was Reggie.

Then came Larry Bankart who, compared to Norm and Reggie, was a midget but nevertheless a great football player. He was the varsity end for three years. Later he coached here and was head coach at Colgate. Today, Larry Bankart is an important cog in the shaping of Dartmouth's athletic policies.

Houston Injury Brought Out Unknown Depth in 'H' Line

When Howie Houston was hurt in Saturday's game with Holy Cross it was thought that the Crusader backs would have a field day running off the tackles because Dick Harlow had not displayed much depth there. The injury might have done him more harm than good because reserves John Gorczynski and Dean Markham took over from there and proceeded to show the boys how. The two of them couldn't be moved out of the way on a great number of plays and broke through to nail the ball carriers.

Gorczynski had been dropped from the squad after the Virginia game for some unannounced reason but rejoined the team a few days later at his own request. He had not seen much service before that game and had not been outstanding in practice sessions. Having previously attended the University of Pittsburgh and St Louis University before his transfer to Harvard last fall, "Big" John was ineligible for competition. He worked out with the junior varsity eleven and showed to advantage in several scrimmages against the varsity in '46. He was out for spring practice this year and loomed as a possibility for one of the starting tackle berths, but Chester Pierce took over the post and has held it down since then. Powerful Howard Houston was a fixture at the left tackle spot and, since the big Haverhill boy plays almost 60 minutes of each game, any subbing at that spot looked slim.

Markham was much in the same boat although unlike Gorczynski the big 200 pound Los Angeles boy earned his letter last fall. He attended the University of Los Angeles where he played football for two years before entering U. C. L. A. and then transferring to Harvard.

The two didn't see much action in the first three games of the season against Western Maryland, Boston University and Virginia. In the Holy Cross game they had their chance. Houston was taken out in the third period and didn't return to play in the second half. Gorczynski replaced him and displayed defensive ability that his coaches never dreamed was there, with Markham playing the same role.

"Gorczynski and Markham were invaluable to us after Houston got hurt, said Bob Margarita, Crimson backfield coach after the game "The way they were blocking up the holes in our line was good news to us. Our line needs more depth and these two boys will help us a lot."

The way things look now the pair of tackles are not going to be satisfied with being second stringers and are currently battling Chet Pierce for his starting right tackle berth.

With Jim Kenary still a question mark for Saturday's Dartmouth tilt, Jim Noonan has taken over the tailback berth lock, stock and barrel . . . The Brookline boy has been looking good on passing this week and if Kenary does return Noonan will probably be used some in the passing quarterback post in Harlow's fancy T-formation . . . A. David Mazzone, as the rangy end for Everett is now called, is back in the fold and will be pushing ends Red Hill and John Fiorentino for their flanker positions . . . The 6 ft. 3 in. pass-catcher was knocked out of commission with a bruised knee, but now is ready for action against the Big Green . . . Wally Flynn had a 43-yard punting average against the Cross, but it is too bad that he can't fit into the Harvard offensive, because his entrance onto the field is a direct tipoff to the opposition that a kick is in the making . . . The Crimson haven't quick-kicked all year despite the fact that it doesn't take a long boot to catch the safety man flat-footed . . . Kenary, Noonan, Moffie or Roche can kick enough for this.

William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard announced that approximately 8000 admission seats for the Harvard-Dartmouth game on Saturday would go on public sale at H.A.A. ticket office at Quincy st., Cambridge at 9 o'clock Thursday. Tickets for these seats are priced at $2.00.

Cue Title at Stake In City Club Match

Perennial champion Willie Hoppe, cuestick wizard, will defend his three-cusion billiard crown at the Boston City Club on November 5, 6, 7. Art Rubin, New York, brilliant young star, will be the party of the second part.

Rubin is the latest youngster to challenge the "old master" and he finished second to Hoppe in the 1947 world's championship at Chicago.

The two rivals will plays a 300-point match; with 50-point blocks each afternoon and evening.

Loss of Boyle Hurts Terriers Chances Against W. & M.

BU's grid hopes for a Saturday night upset over William and Mary suffered a severe setback today, when it was learned that Art Boyle would probably be out of action.

Art can barely walk, and his injury has compelled Donelli to abandon all personnel changes which he had been contemplating. Boyle was slated to start at center, which would have permitted Lou Beardell to move into one of the tackle berths.

In addition to Boyle's bad leg, ends George Boston and George Winkler are also on the shelf. Boston tripped, causing his ankle to swell and restrict his movements. Winkler has been unable to wear a shoe, because of a tape rash.

The injury jinx has not confined its activities to the BU squad. Reports from Williamsburg indicate that Indian coach "Rube" McCray will be minus the services of Jack (Flying) Cloud, his All-Southern Conference fullback.

No announcement has been made by the Terrier board of strategy on the disposition of Capt. Don Giles. However, it is quite possible that Pete Sarno will move into the left half slot until Don regains his '46 form.

Giles has been somewhat of a puzzle to the BU coaching staff, and they can't seem to locate the trouble. Last season, the Terrier captain was at his best, leading the squad in the running, passing and kicking departments.

Hampered by an early season sprain this fall, it was expected that the Milton lad would be slow to round into shape, but Don seems to have lost some of the spark which made him such a threat in '46.

With the season half over, Donelli is still clinging to his pre-season prediction about Giles. He feels that Don is a better back than most in New England, and believes that he will snap out of his doldrum if he loosens up a bit.

The William and Mary squad will arrive at the Logan Airport at 7 p. m. Friday . . . Coach McCray's squad uses the single wing . . . The Terriers scrimmaged today, and were also briefed on the single wing defense.

Unbeaten Milton On Way to Crown

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

No one remembers when Milton High last won a football championship. They have come close on a few occasions, most recent of which, was in 1944 when the Miltons won five, tied one, and lost one, beating heavily favored Quincy. This year, however, people are watching Milton more closely for they have won five straight and figure to win some more.

Harry McCormick, is making his debut as a head high school coach. The resounding impact of Harry's football tutoring seems to be paying dividends. Harry is using the "T" exclusively at Milton this year.

Proof of the pudding is in the reading: Canton, 19-12; Hingham, 12-0; Framingham, 14-0; Walpole, 19-14; and Wellesley, 13-6. Milton plays North Attleboro on Saturday at the latter's home grounds and may make it six in a row.

But there is that North Quincy game. Jack Donahue has a strong club at North this year. North should be the toughest opponent on the Milton schedule. The rest of the schedule includes Attleboro, Abington and Braintree.

"Maybe we were sailing on too well," commented McCormick as he dressed for the Hyde Park scrimmage yesterday. "We got a tough blow last night when we were informed that George Johnson, a senior left halfback and one of the most consistent ball players on the squad has a fractured right leg and will be lost for the season."

Carney and McCormick mentioned the unique football situation at Milton where the coaches are not paid for their services. The coaches have their general classes, then do the football on their own time. It is hoped that the Milton residents will rectify this at the Town Meeting.

McCormick, an All-South Shore center with Milton in '38, came back to his old territory in 1944 after finishing his physical education course at Springfield. He was Carney's assistant then. This year the coaches swapped berths. They work as a unit in all departments and are a perfect coaching team. It was Carney, by the way, who developed Don Currivan when Don was at Mansfield High.

The Milton line averages about 170 pounds, good weight for a high school club. The nucleus of the forward wall consists of center Jack Lieber, guards Leo O'Leary, Ed Finnerty, Jack Lamere and Blake, tackles Bob Secatore and Bob Jennings, and ends Joe Sandblom and Dick Cox.

Cox, by the way, is the young fellow who set the Boston Garden record for scoring with 10 shots from the foul line in a Tech Tourney game against Boston Latin last spring.

Co-captain John Manning is "T" quarterback. John does most of the kicking and the passing. He had nine completions in 10 attempts against Hingham and leads the South Shore in punting. "I expect him to make good with some college team," emphasized McCormick.

Favor Priest In R. I. Bout

Al "Red" Priest will rule a favorite to beat Ralph Zanelli in a 10-rounder in Providence tonight. Priest, N. E. middleweight champion from Cambridge, made his last fistic showing when he won a unanimous 10-round nod from Tommy Sullivan at Boston Garden early last month.

Zanelli, formerly one of the most aggressive welterweights in New England, is getting along in years. But whenever Ralph gets into a ring, there is the possibility that he will throw one of his heavy punches. Zanelli has a good win over Joe Blackwood under his belt.

The announcement that Jack "Spider" Armstrong will meet Tommy "Red" Wells, Manchester, at the Arena next Monday night has not set the fistic world on fire. The fans have a vivid memory of the recent fine bouts at the Damon Runyon show.

Young Tommy Collins, South End, stands out on the Monday card. Tommy and Mickey Maguire put on one of the better 10-rounders a short while ago with Tommy winning the decision. Tommy will fight Phil Thomas of New York.

Big Rod-Taken Cod Entered In Ruppert Fishing Contest

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

New England anglers are vieing for honors in the 8th annual George Ruppert Fishing Contest, which ends at midnight, Dec. 31, 1947. Heading the list of entries is the 64-pound cod, caught by Dr. Leon Storz, of Worcester, which sets a new world record for this species taken on rod and reel. Curiously enough, Dr. Storz has achieved world renown as a tuna fisherman, having brought hundreds of the big bluefins to gaff.

A tuna weighing 877 pounds, the second largest ever entered in the tournament, was hooked by Ben A. Smith, of Annisquam. The fish was boated during the recent record run in the waters of Ipswich Bay. Last year's winner weighed 718 pounds.

In the Striped Bass Division, Robert Linton, of Oaklawn, R. I., leads the roster with a savory specimen that tipped the scales at 55 pounds, 8 ounces, 4 ounces ahead of last season's winner.

"Although numerous fishermen and agling editors have been deploring the fact this year that all classes of fish seem to be getting smaller and less plentiful than in former years, we've received 25 per cent more entries to date than in any other contest," states George Ruppert.

Mr. Ruppert's statement, however, is not to be interpreted that there really are as many fish. Judging from the season in local waters, it would seem that many species are on the decline—notably, striped bass. Less contests and more stringent laws will increase our fish population. An estimate reveals that over 70 "Striper Derbies" were held on the Atlantic Coast this summer.

OUTDOOR O.O.'s: It's time for us to start boosting one of our "pet projects" -tests for hunters before granting licenses . . . Every fall, we read of appalling casualties in the woods and fields, and in our opinion, MOST of these accidents could be avoided. The writer believes that the majority of so-called gunners know little or nothing about firearms; hence, they are careless, thoughtless, and "trigger-happy."

Many well-known experts have told us that tests would not be feasible, while others have heartily endorsed our ideas . . . We think that a potential hunter should be able to hit a small object at 50 yards before being given a license. We also think he should know how to handle his gun or rifle, plus the correct way to load, strip, and carry his weapon. During the war, men were not sent into combat before they were familiar with every part of their rifles, blindfolded.

We intend to write more on this vital subject in the near future. In the meantime, what are YOUR views on the matter? Send them to this writer, and help to prevent needless hunting accidents.

Olympics to Dress Big Squad Friday In Season Opener

Barring injuries, manpower will be no problem for Coach "Hago" Harrington's Boston Olympics this season. When they open at the Garden against the Montreal Royals Friday night, they will have a roster of 19 men. The following night, the Olympics play their Eastern League opener, when they tangle with the Baltimore Clippers, also on Garden ice.

Friday night, Harrington will dress 13 skaters and a goalie; the following night, there will be only 12 Pics in uniform. In the Quebec loop, 13 stick-handlers and two net-minders are allowed to dress, while in the Eastern League only 12 men (11 skaters and one goalie) are permitted to play.

The Pics hold their last workout tomorrow noontime at the Garden, before their two games this weekend. The Pic' coach today named his lineup for the Baltimore tilt next Saturday night at the Garden. The 12 men who will dress for the Baltimore game are: Boehmer, Shill, Thompson, Brennan, Barry, Fillion, Gaber, Meldrum, Wallington, Manson, Telford and Dumond. Harrington said that he is still undecided on his squad for the Royals game Friday night.

Dancewicz Gets Big Chance

Frank "Boley" Dancewicz, once one of the most talked of college stars in the nation when he captained and sparked Notre Dame in 1945, has sat quietly in the background of Paul Governali bidding his time for a year and a half. Never complaining but always a standout any time he was called into action, his long wait has finally paid off. With the trading of Paul Governali to the New York Giants for battering Bill Paschal, 205-pound fullback, plus the draft right to Notre Dame's George Connors and two future draft picks, Dancewicz takes over as the Yanks quarterback.

It was a regretable situation that the Yanks had to use the top salaried Governali—they had no other choice. The records for this present season reveal that Dancewicz has been much more effective than Governali. According to the latest figures, Boley is third in the Eastern Division while Paul is sixth. Boley has completed 10 out of 16 passes for a league completion figure of 62.5 which is the highest in either division. And in his 10 completions, he has hit three touchdown passes. Governali, on the other hand, has completed 23 out of 55 for a 41.8 completion average and has also fired three touchdown passes.

There is no denying that over past years Paul has a better passing background than Dancewicz, but this year Governali has not been able to hit his mark. It was because of his pitching that Paul had the edge, for he could never touch Dancewicz as a "T" ball handler and play caller.

BRAVES SIGN 2 MORE LOCAL PLAYERS

John J. Quinn, general manager of the Braves, has announced that Francis Harte of Waltham and Ted Carver of Winthrop have been signed to Tribe farm contracts. Harte will go to the Class C Leaven-worth club of the Western Association, while Carver is labeled for the Pawtucket club of the New England League.

Harte, a heavy hitting first baseman who was All-Suburban in 1947, is 18 years old, stands 6 feet 1½ inches, weighs 178, throws and bats left, was a regular on the Waltham High School team the past two years. Carver, regarded as one of the best young pitching prospects in this area, is also 18, 6 feet tall, weighs 190, and is right-handed all the way.

Shake-Up Gives Tufts Plenty of Touchdowns

Coach Fred Ellis' revamped Tufts varsity lineup has turned in the best scrimmage exhibition of the current season. In a scrimmage against the junior-varsity yesterday, the new edition of first-stringers gave a sensational offensive demonstration of the plays they will use against Northeastern this week-end.

Former Army Flier Pride of Kentucky U

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Things are looking up in football down University of Kentucky way. One of the reason is the play of Jay Rhodemyre.

A center, Rhodemyre, today was selected as the lineman of the week in the first Associated Press poll of the 1947 season. He gained the honor for the manner in which he tore Vanderbilt's line to shreds last Saturday, thus helping to topple Vanderbilt from the unbeaten ranks.

A former Air Forces pilot, who won his letter in 1942 and again in 1946, after he returned from the war, Rhodemyre is 24 years old and hails from Ashland, Ky. He weighs 196 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches in height. His coach, Paul Bryant, terms him a "real competitor."

Several other centers also came in for high praise. Tom Novak of Nebraska was credited with 60 per cent of the tackles against Notre Dame. Tommy Thompson, William and Mary pilot man, turned in a sterling performance against North Carolina. At one time he made eight consecutive tackles.

The linemen nominated included:

ENDS—Bill Waddell, Auburn; Jim Martin, Notre Dame; Barney Poole, Mississippi; Bill Swiacki, Columbia; Ken Powell, North Carolina; Jack Cunningham, California; Bob Reinebohn, Wisconsin; Paul Leary, Southern California; Hal Bhoemer, Iowa; Sid Halliday, Southern Methodist; Herb Shoener, Iowa.

TACKLES—Harold Otterbach, Wisconsin; Ross Nagel, St. Louis; Ken Hubbard, Baylor; Bobby Davis, Georgia Tech.

GUARDS—Geo Corsum, West Virginia; John Prchlik, Yale; Odel Stantzenberger, Texas A. & M.; Shankie Bloxom, Texas Christian; Knox Ramsey, William and Mary.

Big H. C. Shake-Up For Syracuse Tilt

WORCESTER, Oct. 22 (AP)—Coach "Ox" DaGrosa, who has been threatening to shake up his Holy Cross Crusaders all season, finally has got around to it.

He has promoted Co-Captain Ray Ball to the varsity quarterback berth, replaced the 260-pound John Digangi with sophomore Henry Beaulieu at guard, and turned over left end to Jim Dieckelman.

Walter Haas will take over Fran Parker's tackle slot when the former's leg injury mends, probably in time for Saturday's Syracuse game.

Baffling

Neighbors steady Mrs. Theressa Graziano (upper left) after she viewed the bullet-riddled body of her son, Patsy, 19, a war veteran (upper right), killed when a young gunman fired into a group of persons seated on the porch of a Greenwich Village home. Two persons were killed and two others wounded in the baffling shooting. The killer, clad in Army clothing, vanished.
